TO SHORTEN ROUTE

Establishment of Offices in Minneapolis and Chicago Part of Plan

Reorganization of the National Parks Highway, shortening of the route and adoption of a program that is expected to make the highway the leading Northwest trans-continental automobile route was accomplished at a meeting in Minneapolis, A. F. Bradley, secretary of the Bismarck Association of Commerce, said upon returning here at noon today.

Changes made in routing will shorten the trail to 200 miles less distance than the Yellowstone trail from Chicago to the Pacific Coast, he said.

The reorganization plan includes maintenance of headquarters at Spokane, Washington, but placing of contact men at the Twin Cities, Chicago and Fallon, Montana, and employment of a publicity agent. The latter began work today in Wisconsin. Directors from states elected at the Minneapolis meeting include: A. F. Bradley, Bismarck, for North Dakota; R. W. Holcombe, secretary of the La Crosse Chamber of Commerce for Wisconsin and Richard Brophy secretary of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce for Minnesota. Montana at a state meeting will choose a director as will Washington.

The changes in the routing are minor, except that an almost straight line from Madison, Wis. to Chicago was adopted, cutting out Milwaukee, but saving many miles. The directors of the National Parks Highway believe that they will gain greatly by being able to present to tourists a routing 200 miles shorter than the Yellowstone Trail.

The budget for the National Parks Highway for the year was set at $20,000. The Yellowstone Trail Association is seeking $100,000.

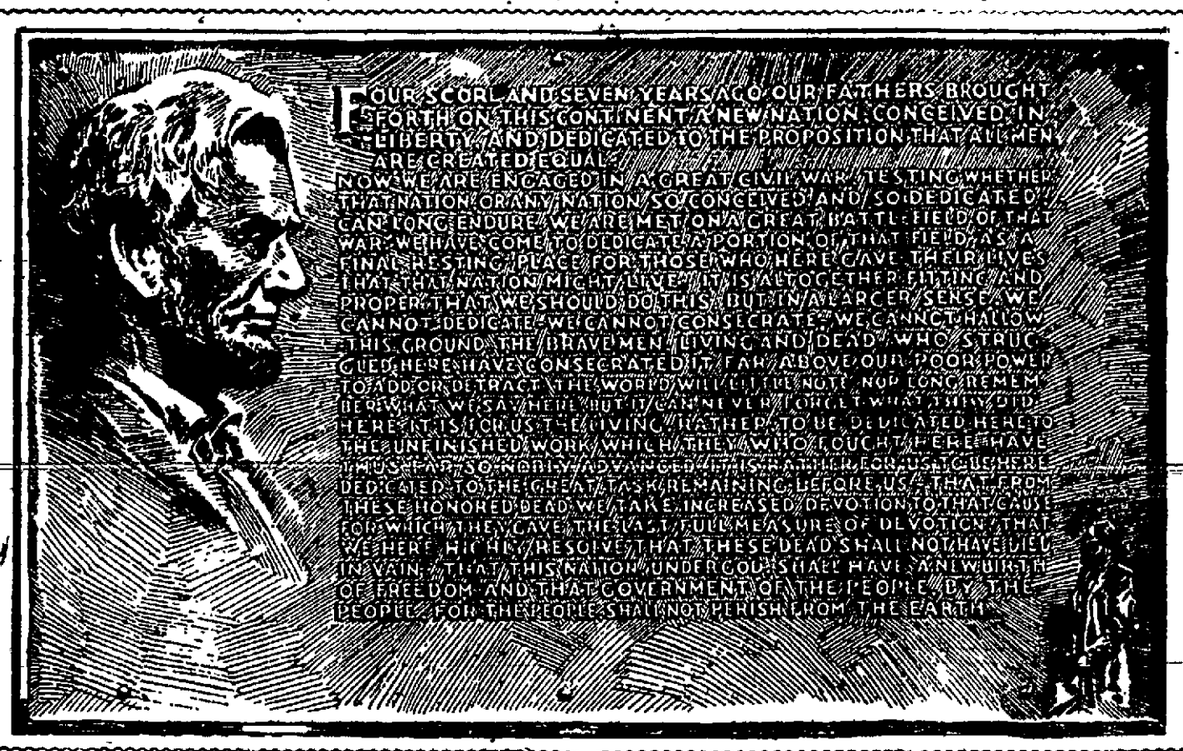
Mr. Bradley and other North Dakota and Montana men asked that the routing of the Yellowstone Trail be changed to include Bismarck and western North Dakota. The Yellowstone Trail Association is having a meeting in Minneapolis now and will probably make a decision today.

ASK FEDERAL BODY

Minneapolis, Feb. 12.—Establishment of a federal highway body to evolve a national highway system was favored by the Yellowstone Trail Association in a resolution adopted at its annual meeting today.

The resolution proposed that this body should have general jurisdiction over the interstate trunk line highways and that it should be patterned on the organization of state highway commissions.

Final arguments on the proposition changing the route of the trail through North Dakota, including Bismarck were presented to the executive committee.



FOUR SCORE AND SEVEN YEARS AGO OUR FATHERS BROUGHT FORTH ON THIS CONTINENT A NEW NATION, CONCEIVED IN LIBERTY, AND DEDICATED TO THE PROPOSITION THAT ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL.
NOW WE ARE ENGAGED IN A GREAT CIVIL WAR, TESTING WHETHER THAT NATION OR ANY NATION SO CONCEIVED AND SO DEDICATED CAN LONG ENDURE. WE ARE MET ON A GREAT BATTLE-FIELD OF THAT WAR. WE HAVE COME TO DEDICATE A PORTION OF THAT FIELD, AS A FINAL RESTING PLACE FOR THOSE WHO HERE GAVE THEIR LIVES THAT THAT NATION MIGHT LIVE. IT IS ALTOGETHER FITTING AND PROPER THAT WE SHOULD DO THIS. BUT IN A LARGER SENSE WE CANNOT DEDICATE, WE CANNOT CONSECRATE, WE CANNOT HALLOW THIS GROUND. THE BRAVE MEN, LIVING AND DEAD, WHO STRUGGLED HERE HAVE CONSECRATED IT FAR ABOVE OUR POOR POWER TO ADD OR DETRACT. THE WORLD WILL LITTLE NOTE, NOR LONG REMEMBER WHAT WE SAY HERE, BUT IT CAN NEVER FORGET WHAT THEY DID HERE. IT IS FOR US THE LIVING, RATHER, TO BE DEDICATED HERE TO THE UNFINISHED WORK WHICH THEY WHO FOUGHT HERE HAVE THUS FAR SO NOBLY ADVANCED. IT IS RATHER FOR US TO BE HERE DEDICATED TO THE GREAT TASK REMAINING BEFORE US, THAT FROM THESE HONORED DEAD WE TAKE INCREASED DEVOTION TO THAT CAUSE FOR WHICH THEY GAVE THE LAST FULL MEASURE OF DEVOTION, THAT WE HERE HIGHLY RESOLVE THAT THESE DEAD SHALL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN, THAT THIS NATION, UNDER GOD, SHALL HAVE A NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM, AND THAT GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE, FOR THE PEOPLE, SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH."

MELLON BILL COMPROMISE IS FORECAST

Representative Longworth, Republican Leader, Sees Higher Surtax Rates

BACKERS ARE FIRM

Record Vote by Congressmen To be Demanded by the Proponents of Bill

Washington, Feb. 12.—House leaders were busy lining up forces today for the opening of the floor contest on the revenue bill on Thursday.

Though Republican chieftains have declared after a poll of delegations that it appeared impossible that the surtax rates of the bill—the same as recommended by Secretary Mellon—can stand proponents of the treasury measure are preparing to fight it out.

Announcement by Rep. Longworth, Republican floor leader, that a higher maximum surtax rate than the 25 percent in the bill undoubtedly will have to be adopted was followed yesterday by publication of a letter of Secretary Slemp to Representative Davey, Democrat, Ohio, in which it was said that President Coolidge's decisions on the tax bill "had indicated he is disposed to a liberal attitude."

The letter was sent January 28 in reply to a question by the representative whether the President would veto any tax reduction bill "that differs materially from the so-called Mellon plan."

Backers of the Mellon income rate are pinning their hope on obtaining a record vote. With these rates already in the bill any vote which would be made under normal procedure, Rep. Longworth has pointed out, would be on amendments and unless the amendments were adopted the original rates would stand.

HERRIN HELD IN IRON HAND OF MILITARY

Illinois Town Likened to Town Behind the Lines During War-Time

MACHINE GUNS BARED

Military Under Command of General Foreman Takes Over Police Duties

Herrin, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—Williamson county, for the first time in its fervid history, today felt the iron hand of military discipline and it does not require much imagination to liken it to a bit of country back of the lines in war time France.

In the three principal towns of the county—Herrin, Marion and Johnson City—the streets are flanked with mounted machine guns and howitzers, soldiers with rifles and fixed bayonets are patrolling the streets and motor trucks loaded with soldiers are driving all over the county posting placards telling of the military rule.

Red Cross stations have been established and the army bugler's reveille in the morning instead of the factory and mine whistles seems to be the signal of the awakening of the people for another day. While at night after taps has been sounded the noise of the city ceases and the people instinctively turn toward their homes.

The khaki of the soldiers predominates everywhere. Last night the march of tramping soldiers and the sharp thud as they came to a halt and their rifle butts hit the ground were the only noises that broke the peaceful quiet.

Foreman in Command.

Major-General Milton Foreman, commanding-general of the 33rd division and in charge of the troops here, has established his headquarters at the Lymar hotel at Herrin.

The arrival of the troops saw the departure of the de facto government of the city of Herrin. The several hundred special policemen who had been patrolling the streets gradually disappeared and at 6 o'clock last night their leader, S. Glenn Young, left Herrin for Marion.

A statement that amounted to an order issued by General Foreman to the citizens of Williamson county declared that the appointment of all special policemen and deputies was revoked and annulled and that from now on as long as the troops remain only those legally elected or appointed will be permitted to enforce the law in the county.

Resume Inquest.

Among the citizenry only duly authorized peace officers will be permitted to carry firearms and General Foreman said every word in the statement would be enforced to the letter.

The coroner's inquest will be resumed at the city hall this afternoon into the constable of Caesar Cagle, who was killed last Friday night.

Coroner McCowan with eight national guardsmen left Carbondale early today for Urbana to bring Sheriff Galligan, three of his deputies and the health commissioner of Herrin back to the county seat at Marion. The purpose in returning them is to permit them to secure their release on bond if they can.

The sheriff and his aides were taken secretly to Urbana by S. Glenn Young after they were charged with the killing of Constable Cagle.

WON'T PUNISH INNOCENT MAN TO HELP SELF

President Refuses to Admit Senate Has Power to Force Resignation

IS AWAITING ADVICE

Will Not Ask Secretary of Navy to Resign Until He Hears From Counsel

CONTINUE INQUIRY

Washington, Feb. 12.—Having placed on file at the White House its unavailing demand for the immediate resignation of Secretary Denby the senate today turned its inquisitorial spotlight once more on the affairs of former Secretary Fall.

Before the oil committee a succession of witnesses were questioned about financial transactions in the southwest in an effort by committee members to delve further into Mr. Fall's connection and associations during that period of his career which recently has come so prominently under public scrutiny.

So far as the senate's action yesterday regarding Secretary Denby is concerned both the White House and the Secretary himself appeared to regard the incident as closed. President Coolidge departed on a trip to New York without adding to his statement in which he said the question was one for executive and not legislative decision.

Mr. Denby was at his desk as usual and would only say that he had no comment to make. Whether the Navy Secretary eventually may quit the cabinet is a question which only time can answer. The President in his statement left the way open for any readjustment he may desire later to make in his official family.

QUESTION RULING.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Legality of the ruling by Albert B. Fall, while Secretary of the Interior, which permitted the leasing of unalloted lands on Indian reservations for mining and the production of oil and gas was questioned today by a house Indian Affairs sub-committee after an investigation of the former secretary's action.

Washington, Feb. 12.—President Coolidge will take "no official recognition" of the senate resolution advising him to demand the resignation of Secretary Denby because of his connection with the leasing of the Naval Oil Reserve.

The Robinson resolution calling for the Naval Secretary's resolution was adopted by the senate late yesterday, 47 to 34, and sent immediately to the White House. A statement announcing the President's refusal to take such action was issued four hours later.

"The dismissal of an officer of the government such as is invited in the case other than by impeachment," he declared, "is exclusively an executive function."

Only when "special counsel can advise me as to the legality of these leases and assemble from the pertinent facts in the various transactions" he said will he "take such action as seems essential for the full protection of the public interest" acting "with entire justice to all parties concerned."

"I do not propose to sacrifice any innocent man for my own welfare," he asserted, "nor do I propose to retain in office any unfit man for my own welfare."

Party Involved

Toward the close of the senate debate on the Denby resolution, Senator Johnson of California, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination asked his colleagues to turn out of office all of those connected with the oil leases and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, leader of the Republican insurgents, declared that President Coolidge and the Republican party as well as Secretary Denby and Attorney General Daugherty must bear their share of the responsibility.

In the end, 10 Republicans cast their votes for the Denby resolution. The Republican organization fought to the last to prevent adoption, but went down in defeat after a parliamentary fight almost without precedent in American history.

The Roll Call

Democrats, Yeas: Adams, Ashurst, Bayard, Broussard, Copeland, Dial, Dill, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Harris, Heflin, Kendrick, King, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ralston, Randell, Reed of Missouri, Robinson, Sheppard, Shields, Simmons, Stephens, Swanson, Trammell, Underwood, Walsh of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana and Wheeler—35.

Republicans, Yeas: Brookhart, Capper, Frazier, Harreld, Johnson of California, Ladd, La Follette, Nelson, Norbeck, Norris—10.

Farmer Labor: Shipstead and Johnson of Minnesota—2. Total 47.

CANDIDATES TO 'GO IT ALONE' FOR N. DAKOTA

COMBINATION FAILS

The plan agreed on by the Republican state committee controlled by the Nonpartisan League here last Friday, of having one slate of delegates to the Republican national convention to go on ballot in March 18 primary so that there would be a straight "league and I. V. A. lineup" will not be carried out.

R. W. Frazier, chairman of the organization, here today said that the LaFollette men would not agree to a slate picked by representatives of Coolidge, Johnson and LaFollette in the Republican state committee. All the delegates chosen at the Dec. 28 conference of the state committee will withdraw, Frazier said. It is expected an out and out Coolidge delegation will be selected by the "Real Republican" state committee here on Thursday.

Mr. Frazier in a statement in Fargo last night said:

"Having talked with the candidates indorsed for delegates to the Republican national convention, by the Republican state central committee in Bismarck on December 28, and having analyzed the situation we have come to the conclusion that to give the people of the state a fair chance to express their choice in the presidential primary as to who should be North Dakota's choice for president and delegates that it would be best for us to withdraw all delegate candidates indorsed by us at said meeting, thereby giving the manager of each presidential candidate a fair chance to elect his delegation. This will simplify matters and be in accord with the action taken by the delegates to the Nonpartisan League state convention in Bismarck on February 6, 1924, and being a member of the League executive committee, I feel it my duty to take this action. However, as the candidate for national committeeman indorsed by the Republican state committee has nothing to do with the delegates to the national convention or as to the preferential presidential choice, I feel it my duty to ask all Republicans of the state to support Eric Bowman, the party indorsed at the meeting of December 28 and reindorsed on February 7.

BODY OF KING TUT, DECORATED BY JEWELS, FOUND IN SARCOPHAGUS

Luxor, Egypt, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The lid of Tut-Ankh-Amen's sarcophagus was raised today. It is understood the body of the King was found within.

When the lid was raised there was revealed the most splendid gilded mummy case ever found in Egypt. It was about three meters long.

The mummy case bears an effigy in relief of the King wearing the "nems" of sacred headdress like that of the Sphinx, decorated with the head of a hawk and serpent of pure gold set with lapis lazuli. The hands are crossed, one bearing a crook sceptre and the other a flail.

A pathetic touch is given the effigy by a little crown of withered natural flowers set about the headdress.

The royal mummy case has not yet been opened.

Experts characterize the disclosure of the mummy case as the greatest discovery in the history of Egyptology or possibly in all archaeology.

AUTO OWNERS' LICENSES DUE

Auto owners are getting their licenses earlier this year. Receipts thus far in the office of W. P. Tucker, motor vehicle registrar, show this. But, although stated by this showing, Tucker makes it emphatic that every owner who operates a car with a 1923 license is violating the law, because all such licenses expired on December 31, 1923, and the 1924 license became due January 1. There is no extension of time provided in the motor vehicle laws.

Receipts thus far at the bureau are $87,053.85 as compared to $43,784.35 on February 28 last year.

CHINAMAN IS SENT TO PEN

Judge Miller Gives Him Five Years as Example

Minot, N. D., Feb. 12.—Sam Kong, 63, Chinese, was today sentenced by Judge Andrew Miller in federal court in Minot to serve five years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth following his recent conviction on a charge of violating the narcotic act. Testimony introduced at Kong's trial showed that he had sold a small quantity of cocaine to a government inspector's informer.

In passing sentence Judge Miller told Kong that he wished to impose a penalty "which will strike terror into the hearts of others who think they can sell dope and get away with it."

John Reed and Charles Lano of Minot, former police officers of this city, were acquitted of a charge of violating the liquor laws in a verdict returned by a jury in a federal court this morning.

FIRE ALARMS AGAIN SOUND FROM PRISON

No Riot Follows in Pennsylvania Institution and Fire Is Put Out

PROBE GUARD MURDERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—Fire alarms and riot calls were sent out from the western penitentiary this morning when fire started in the prison laundry. Warden J. M. Egan said there was no disorder and that the blaze of undetermined origin caused slight damage. County detectives and the city police were called to guard against a renewal of yesterday's fighting when two guards were killed, the warden said. The warden and members of the prison board were investigating yesterday's outbreak when the fire gong sounded. Prisoners in the yard and work shops were rounded up and the prison fire-fighting units extinguished the blaze. When the county and city officials reached the prison they were informed the fire was out and there was no trouble.

Three prisoners—Salvator Batlis, murderer, serving 20 years; Mike Norton, robber, serving 14 years, and Paul Orlikoaki, bank robber, were being questioned today in connection with the killing of two guards. They led the riot, the warden said, and will be turned over to the coroner for an inquest.

The prison was being searched today for a dozen pistols, dynamite and other weapons used by prisoners. Officials believe the arms and explosives were smuggled to the prisoners by outsiders.

Efforts were being made, Warden Egan said, to single out from more than 1,000 convicts the score who took part in the rioting. A majority of prisoners, he said, helped the guards and officers.

BUILDING TO HOUSE STATE OFFICES, PLAN

Erection of "Down Town Capital" in Bismarck Discussed with Officials

Possibility of erecting a building down town in Bismarck which would house the Bank of North Dakota and other state departments has been brought before state officials by E. A. Hughes. The matter also was discussed last year at the time of the expiration of the lease of the Bank of North Dakota building but no action was taken.

The erection of a building to house the bank and other departments probably would necessitate it going up seven or eight stories in height. Just what state departments will need housing after the new Liberty Memorial building is completed next spring is uncertain. The moving of the supreme court and libraries into the new building will give additional room in the capitol but not sufficient to house all departments now downtown, in the opinion of members of the board of administration.

The Bank of North Dakota's lease on its present building continues until next July 1. It also houses the railroad commission, motor vehicle registrar, highway commission drafting room and stock room.

C. R. Green, manager of the Bank of North Dakota, said that no action had been taken by the bank along this line, but the matter has been discussed. A member of the Industrial Commission said that tentative proposals had been made to that body but it also had taken no action and was not certain what the action would be.

GET SIX MONTHS.

Minot, Feb. 12.—Fred Wheelock of Ross, N. D., who pleaded guilty on Saturday to a charge of stealing about $5 of postal funds was sentenced in federal court here to serve six months in the county jail at Stanley.

Stockholm, Feb. 12.—The population of Sweden has increased 20 percent since 1898; it is today in excess of 6,000,000.

Glasgow to Have Large Dock

Glasgow, Feb. 12.—Glasgow is to have the largest dock in Great Britain. It will cost $10,000,000, cover 40 acres of water and will accommodate the largest vessels touching this port.

TRAIN-A-DAY REQUIREMENT IN N. DAKOTA

Tri-Weekly Service Petition on Branch Lines Is Denied By Railroad Body

The minimum train service which a railroad may give in North Dakota is the operation of one mixed passenger and freight train each way every business day of the year under the North Dakota law, the state railroad commission decided today in denying the application of the Soo line for establishment of tri-weekly service on the Fordville-Drake branch.

The question of revenue or service did not enter into the railroad commission's consideration, the opinion said. Chairman Milholland, writing the opinion, quoted the state law which, he said, fixed the minimum service. Under a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, received by the state commission yesterday, the state commission has jurisdiction over train service within the state, he said.

The Fordville-Drake branch gave tri-weekly service until the fall of 1922 when daily service was put on. The railroad wished to revert to the tri-weekly service, stating that this plan would save $3,745.80 but still leave a deficit in the operation of the line.

RANCH RODEO PLANNED.

Killdeer, N. D., Feb. 12.—Sam Rhoades and Mike Goodale, local cowpunchers, have announced plans under way for a rodeo to be held at one of the Killdeer mountain district ranches on July 3, 4, 5. They have invited the Killdeer Legion to take charge of concessions.

All Urged To Give Boost To Band Juveniles

Every citizen is invited to attend the first concert of the Bismarck Juvenile Band, which will be given Thursday, February 14, at 3:45 p.m. and at 8 p. m. in the city Auditorium.

Packed houses both at the afternoon and evening performances are asked to encourage the juveniles of the city in their undertaking.

The concerts are free.

CITIZENS OF STATE ASKED TO COAL CASE

Attendance at Hearing Here February 25 Is Urged By Milholland

Attendance of coal men and representative citizens from all parts of the state at the lignite coal rate case hearing to begin in Bismarck February 25 is urged by Chairman Milholland of the state railroad commission. Because it is expected many citizens will attend the hearing it will be held in the United States district court room here, before an examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the state railroad commissioners.

An exhaustive presentation of rates and other matters affecting lignite coal will be made both by the representatives of railroads and the coal operators and the public. The first hearing, to be held at Aberdeen, S. D. on February 20, will deal wholly with the inter-state rates, while the hearing in Bismarck will deal both with the interstate and state rates.

V. E. Smart, former traffic expert of the railroad commission, now with the Missouri commission, has arrived to assist E. H. Hendricks, traffic expert for that body now, in compiling data which the railroad commission will introduce.

Protest will be made against proposed increases in rates of bituminous coal from southern Illinois mines to points on the Great Northern railroad in South Dakota and on the Great Northern line from Fairmount west in North Dakota, at a hearing to be held in Watertown, S. D. on February 19, Mr. Hendricks said today. Mr. Hendricks will represent North Dakota at the hearing. The proposed increased schedule on coal originating on the Burlington route would be as much as 68 cents a ton to some points, he says.

KLAN HEADS IN AGREEMENT?

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 12.—Settlement of all differences between William Joseph Simmons, emperor and founder of the Ku Klux Klan, and Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, imperial wizard of the order, for a consideration of $146,000, paid to Col. Simmons, was reported by close friends of the parties, according to a story appearing today in the Atlanta Journal.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 12.—Official announcement was made today from the Imperial Palace of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan that Col. Joseph Simmons, emperor, and founder of the Klan, has resigned as emperor and as Klansman and disposed of all his interests in the order for a consideration of $146,000 in cash.

CORN CONTEST FOR JUVENILES.

New England, Feb. 12.—Nearly 80 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 18 have already enlisted in a two acre, corn club contest which has been launched by the local Town Criers club.

NATION'S CAPITAL TODAY DOES HONOR TO LINCOLN'S MEMORY

Washington, Feb. 12.—The capital celebration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln centered today in a memorial program in the house and the departure of President Coolidge to New York to address the Lincoln birthday dinner of the National Republican.

The senate, devoting its time to ordinance of the day and a number of its members took part in the services arranged by the schools and the patriotic and other organizations.

Calling up the "influence of America and the spirit of Abraham Lincoln" to lead "the nations of the world from the hatreds of the past and the selfishness of the present to the dawn of a brighter and better day," Rep. Rathbone of Illinois, the Memorial speaker in the House, described the Washington arms conference as "epoch-making" and suggested that further bounds "be set to the insanity of nations in piling ever higher and higher the expense of armaments.

"Even as Abraham Lincoln has more than any other statesman set the moral standard for men," he declared, "so we hope and believe that America more than any other land will fix the moral standards of all nations."

BODY OF KING TUT, DECORATED BY JEWELS, FOUND IN SARCOPHAGUS

Luxor, Egypt, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The lid of Tut-Ankh-Amen's sarcophagus was raised today. It is understood the body of the King was found within.

When the lid was raised there was revealed the most splendid gilded mummy case ever found in Egypt. It was about three meters long.

The mummy case bears an effigy in relief of the King wearing the "nems" of sacred headdress like that of the Sphinx, decorated with the head of a hawk and serpent of pure gold set with lapis lazuli. The hands are crossed, one bearing a crook sceptre and the other a flail.

A pathetic touch is given the effigy by a little crown of withered natural flowers set about the headdress.

The royal mummy case has not yet been opened.

Experts characterize the disclosure of the mummy case as the greatest discovery in the history of Egyptology or possibly in all archaeology.

AUTO OWNERS' LICENSES DUE

Auto owners are getting their licenses earlier this year. Receipts thus far in the office of W. P. Tucker, motor vehicle registrar, show this. But, although slated by this showing, Tucker makes it emphatic that every owner who operates a car with a 1923 license is violating the law, because all such licenses expired on December 31, 1923, and the 1924 license became due January 1. There is no extension of time provided in the motor vehicle laws.

Receipts thus far at the bureau are $87,053.85 as compared to $43,784.35 on February 28 last year.

CHINAMAN IS SENT TO PEN

Judge Miller Gives Him Five Years as Example

Minot, N. D., Feb. 12.—Sam Kong, 63, Chinese, was today sentenced by Judge Andrew Miller in federal court in Minot to serve five years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth following his recent conviction on a charge of violating the narcotic act. Testimony introduced at Kong's trial showed that he had sold a small quantity of cocaine to a government inspector's informer.

In passing sentence Judge Miller told Kong that he wished to impose a penalty "which will strike terror into the hearts of others who think they can sell dope and get away with it."

John Reed and Charles Lano of Minot, former police officers of this city, were acquitted of a charge of violating the liquor laws in a verdict returned by a jury in a federal court this morning.

BUILDING TO HOUSE STATE OFFICES, PLAN

Erection of "Down Town Capital" in Bismarck Discussed with Officials

Possibility of erecting a building down town in Bismarck which would house the Bank of North Dakota and other state departments has been brought before state officials by E. A. Hughes. The matter also was discussed last year at the time of the expiration of the lease of the Bank of North Dakota building but no action was taken.

The erection of a building to house the bank and other departments probably would necessitate it going up seven or eight stories in height. Just what state departments will need housing after the new Liberty Memorial building is completed next spring is uncertain. The moving of the supreme court and libraries into the new building will give additional room in the capitol but not sufficient to house all departments now downtown, in the opinion of members of the board of administration.

The Bank of North Dakota's lease on its present building continues until next July 1. It also houses the railroad commission, motor vehicle registrar, highway commission drafting room and stock room.

C. R. Green, manager of the Bank of North Dakota, said that no action had been taken by the bank along this line, but the matter has been discussed. A member of the Industrial Commission said that tentative proposals had been made to that body but it also had taken no action and was not certain what the action would be.

FIRE ALARMS AGAIN SOUND FROM PRISON

No Riot Follows in Pennsylvania Institution and Fire Is Put Out

PROBE GUARD MURDERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—Fire alarms and riot calls were sent out from the western penitentiary this morning when fire started in the prison laundry. Warden J. M. Egan said there was no disorder and that the blaze of undetermined origin caused slight damage. County detectives and the city police were called to guard against a renewal of yesterday's fighting when two guards were killed, the warden said. The warden and members of the prison board were investigating yesterday's outbreak when the fire gong sounded. Prisoners in the yard and work shops were rounded up and the prison fire-fighting units extinguished the blaze. When the county and city officials reached the prison they were informed the fire was out and there was no trouble.

Three prisoners—Salvator Batlia, murderer, serving 20 years; Mike Norton, robber, serving 14 years, and Paul Orlikoaki, bank robber, were being questioned today in connection with the killing of two guards. They led the riot, the warden said, and will be turned over to the coroner for an inquest.

The prison was being searched today for a dozen pistols, dynamite and other weapons used by prisoners. Officials believe the arms and explosives were smuggled to the prisoners by outsiders.

Efforts were being made, Warden Egan said, to single out from more than 1,000 convicts the score who took part in the rioting. A majority of prisoners, he said, helped the guards and officers.

POPULATION ADVANCES

Stockholm, Feb. 12.—The population of Sweden has increased 20 percent since 1898; it is today in excess of 6,000,000.

NATION'S CAPITAL TODAY DOES HONOR TO LINCOLN'S MEMORY

Washington, Feb. 12.—The capital celebration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln centered today in a memorial program in the house and the departure of President Coolidge to New York to address the Lincoln birthday dinner of the National Republican.

The senate was in recess in observance of the day and a number of its members took part in the exercises arranged by the schools and the patriotic and other organizations.

Calling up the "influence of America and the spirit of Abraham Lincoln" to lead "the nations of the world from the hatreds of the past and the selfishness of the present to the dawn of a brighter and better day," Rep. Rathbone of Illinois, the Memorial speaker in the House, described the Washington arms conference as "epoch-making" and suggested that further bounds "be set to the insanity of nations in piling even higher and higher the expense of armaments.

"Just as Abraham Lincoln has more than any other statesman set the moral standard for men," he declared, "so we hope and believe that America more than any other land will fix the moral standards of all nations."

MELLON BILL COMPROMISE IS FORECAST

Rcpresentative Longworth, Republican Leader, Sees Higher Surtax Rates

BACKERS ARE FIRM

Record Vote by Congressmen To be Demanded by the Proponents of Bill

Washington, Feb. 12.—House leaders were busy lining up forces today for the opening of the floor contest on the revenue bill on Thursday.

Though Republican chieftains have declared after a poll of delecations that it appeared impossible that the surtax rates of the bill—the same as recommended by Secretary Mellon—can stand proponents of the treasury measure are preparing to fight it out.

Announcement by Rep. Longworth, Republican floor leader, that a higher maximum surtax rate than the 25 percent in the bill undoubtedly will have to be adopted was followed yesterday by publication of a letter of Secretary Slemp to Representative Davey, Democrat, Ohio, in which it was said that President Coolidge's decisions on the tax bill "had indicated he is disposed to a liberal attitude."

The letter was sent January 28 in reply to a question by the representative whether the President would veto any tax reduction bill "that differs materially from the so-called Mellon plan."

Backers of the Mellon income rate are pinning their hope on obtaining a record vote. With these rates already in the bill any vote which would be made under normal procedure, Rep. Longworth has pointed out, would be on amendments and unless the amendments were adopted the original rates would stand.

TRAIN-A-DAY REQUIREMENT IN N. DAKOTA

Tri-Weekly Service Petition on Branch Lines Is Denied By Railroad Body

The minimum train service which a railroad may give in North Dakota is the operation of one mixed passenger and freight train each way every business day of the year under the North Dakota law, the state railroad commission decided today in denying the application of the Soo line for establishment of tri-weekly service on the Fordville-Drake branch.

The question of revenue or service did not enter into the railroad commission's consideration, the opinion said. Chairman Milholland, writing the opinion, quoted the state law which, he said, fixed the minimum service. Under a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, received by the state commission yesterday, the state commission has jurisdiction over train service within the state, he said.

The Fordville-Drake branch gave tri-weekly service until the fall of 1922 when daily service was put on. The railroad wished to revert to the tri-weekly service, stating that this plan would save $3,745.80 but still leave a deficit in the operation of the line.

HERRIN HELD IN IRON HAND OF MILITARY

Illinois Town Likened to Town Behind the Lines During War-Time

MACHINE GUNS BARED

Military Under Command of General Foreman Takes Over Police Duties

Herrin, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—Williamson county, for the first time in its fervid history, today felt the iron hand of military discipline and it does not require much imagination to liken it to a bit of country back of the lines in war time France.

In the three principal towns of the county—Herrin, Marion and Johnson City—the streets are flanked with mounted machine guns and howitzers, soldiers with rifles and fixed bayonets are patrolling the streets and motor trucks loaded with soldiers are driving all over the county posting placards telling of the military rule.

Red Cross stations have been established and the army bugler's reveille in the morning instead of the factory and mine whistles seems to be the signal of the awakening of the people for another day. While at night after taps has been sounded the noise of the city ceases and the people instinctively turn toward their homes.

The khaki of the soldiers predominates everywhere. Last night the march of tramping soldiers and the sharp thud as they came to a halt and their rifle butts hit the ground were the only noises that broke the peaceful quiet.

Foreman in Command.

Major-General Milton Foreman, commanding-general of the 33rd division and in charge of the troops here, has established his headquarters at the Lymar hotel at Herrin.

The arrival of the troops saw the departure of the de facto government of the city of Herrin. The several hundred special policemen who had been patrolling the streets gradually disappeared and at 6 o'clock last night their leader, S. Glenn Young, left Herrin for Marion.

A statement that amounted to an order issued by General Foreman to the citizens of Williamson county declared that the appointment of all special policemen and deputies was revoked and annulled and that from now on as long as the troops remain only those legally elected or appointed will be permitted to enforce the law in the county.

Resume Inquest.

Among the citizenry only duly authorized peace officers will be permitted to carry firearms and General Foreman said every word in the statement would be enforced to the letter.

The coroner's inquest will be resumed at the city hall this afternoon into the constable of Caesar Cagle, who was killed last Friday night.

Coroner McCowan with eight national guardsmen left Carbondale early today for Urbana to bring Sheriff Galligan, three of his deputies and the health commissioner of Herrin back to the county seat at Marion. The purpose in returning them is to permit them to secure their release on bond if they can.

The sheriff and his aides were taken secretly to Urbana by S. Glenn Young after they were charged with the killing of Constable Cagle.

President Refuses to Admit Senate Has Power to Force Resignation

IS AWAITING ADVICE

Will Not Ask Secretary of Navy to Resign Until He Hears From Counsel

CONTINUE INQUIRY

Washington, Feb. 12.—Having placed on file at the White House its unavailing demand for the immediate resignation of Secretary Denby the senate today turned its inquisitorial spotlight once more on the affairs of former Secretary Fall.

Before the oil committee a succession of witnesses were questioned about financial transactions in the southwest in an effort by committee members to delve further into Mr. Fall's connection and associations during that period of his career which recently has come so prominently under public scrutiny.

So far as the senate's action yesterday regarding Secretary Denby is concerned both the White House and the Secretary himself appeared to regard the incident as closed. President Coolidge departed on a trip to New York without adding to his statement in which he said the question was one for executive and not legislative decision.

Mr. Denby was at his desk as usual and would only say that he had no comment to make. Whether the Navy Secretary eventually may quit the cabinet is a question which only time can answer. The President in his statement left the way open for any readjustment he may desire later to make in his official family.

QUESTION RULING.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Legality of the ruling by Albert B. Fall, while Secretary of the Interior, which permitted the leasing of unalloted lands on Indian reservations for mining and the production of oil and gas was questioned today by a house Indian Affairs sub-committee after an investigation of the former secretary's action.

Washington, Feb. 12.—President Coolidge will take "no official recognition" of the senate resolution advising him to demand the resignation of Secretary Denby because of his connection with the leasing of the Naval Oil Reserve.

The Robinson resolution calling for the Naval Secretary's resolution was adopted by the senate late yesterday, 47 to 34, and sent immediately to the White House. A statement announcing the President's refusal to take such action was issued four hours later.

"The dismissal of an officer of the government such as is invited in the case other than by impeachment," he declared, "is exclusively an executive function."

Only when "special counsel can advise me as to the legality of these leases and assemble from the pertinent facts in the various transactions" he said will he "take such action as seems essential for the full protection of the public interest" acting "with entire justice to all parties concerned."

"I do not propose to sacrifice any innocent man for my own welfare," he asserted, "nor do I propose to retain in office any unfit man for my own welfare."

Party Involved

Toward the close of the senate debate on the Denby resolution, Senator Johnson of California, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination asked his colleagues to turn out of office all of those connected with the oil leases and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, leader of the Republican insurgents, declared that President Coolidge and the Republican party as well as Secretary Denby and Attorney General Daugherty must bear their share of the responsibility.

In the end, 10 Republicans cast their votes for the Denby resolution. The Republican organization fought to the last to prevent adoption, but went down in defeat after a parliamentary fight almost without precedent in American history.

VETERANS OF NORTHWEST IN HOSPITAL NEED

Legion Officer, Investigating in North Dakota, Other States, Reports

CAPACITY LACKING

The Construction of Hospital For Tuberculars Held Pressing Need

Increased hospital facilities are needed in North and South Dakota Montana and Minnesota for veterans of the World War suffering from tuberculosis and mental illness, it is declared in a report made by W. T. Kroll, representative of the American Legion, after a tour of the district in cooperation with the Veterans Bureau and studying the welfare of the ex-service men. Mr. Kroll, formerly was commander of the American Legion in North Dakota, with headquarters at Fargo. Mr. Kroll was here on an investigation.

"Our minimum needs for the present and immediate future are," he says, "in treating the N. P. hospital as under construction at St. Cloud, Minnesota, to a capacity of 1,000. The immediate construction of a hospital or hospitals to open 1,500 P. B.'s with modern equipment, treatment and care.

"There are approximately 2,000 ex-service men in this district suffering from those diseases classified as neuro-psychiatric, and who are classified as mental cases, and approximately 5,000 others suffering from other nervous disorders," he continued. "Of the 2,000 first mentioned 1,200 are beneficiaries of the Bureau. Ninety men are hospitalized in Veterans Bureau hospitals in this district under very unsatisfactory conditions. One hundred and fifty-nine are hospitalized in three state institutions and with the exceptions of 19, the conditions under which the Bureau cases (of these men are terrible. One hundred and twenty-eight men are being cared for in different hospitals outside of this city. These figures are from the Bureau report of hospital population dated January 10, 1924 and show that the Bureau is caring for 377 demented ex-service men, which will more than fill the new hospital at St. Cloud.

"In addition there are about 350 men declared incompetent by the Bureau, who are cared for by guardians, to whom the bureau is paying a total rating of compensation, and who are in dire need of hospital care, and who will be hospitalized as soon as relatives and guardians are assured that a proper institution has been provided.

The Veterans Bureau, he says, is endeavoring to vocationally rehabilitate about 900 men in insane hospitals of Montana, Minnesota and South Dakota but the results are discouraging, and as they become more despondent there will be greater need for hospital care.

"A total number of ex-service men who are tubercular in the district composed of North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana is approximately 5,500, Kroll declared. There is need for hospitalization within the district of 1,076 men, he said. Many men he said, would not accept treatment offered in hospitals in other parts of the country far remote from their homes, and consequently to secure best results he feels there is need for added tubercular hospital facilities within the district.

"The hospitals in Washington, California, Arizona, New Mexico, and North Carolina where a great number of Northwest tuberculars are hospitalized, are too far removed from the man's home to keep him in a satisfied state of mind which is so essential to his recovery from tuberculosis," said Mr Kroll. "In this district very few men, if any, are given sanitarium care by the government for a reasonable period of time after they have reached the apparently 'arrested' stage but are continually being sent out to their homes and put into training many months before the danger period of a reoccurence has passed. The conditions under which tuberculars are hospitalized in this district at the present time are quite serious and hundreds of these men will die if care other than that which they are receiving now is not given immediately."

Time Limit On Citizenship Of Service Men

Honorably discharged service men will be given until March 3, in which to apply for naturalization papers and not have to comply with the usual requirements, it was announced last week by Clerk of Court Charles J. Fisher after receiving word from Raymond F. Crist, commissioner of naturalization.

Since the war ex-service men having an honorable discharge have been exempt from having to make a declaration of intention, from proving the usual five years' residence in the United States, from paying the $4 filing fee, and the usual 90 day wait from the date of filing to the date of final hearing.

As a condition for naturalization under this special statute, the applicant must appear before a naturalization examiner with his honorable discharge and two identifying witnesses for preliminary examination.

In his bulletin Mr. Crist draws attention to the provision in the act of July 19, 1919, which provides for the above departure from the regular procedure for service men and which will continue in force only for a period of one year after the return of all of the American troops to the United States.

According to the bulletin, this one year period will expire on March 3 by reason of the fact that the last of the American troops were returned to the United States on March 3, 1923.

"The purpose of the bulletin is to sound warning to the ex-service men in your locality that if they wish to obtain the advantages of the act of July 19, 1919, before its expiration on March 3, 1924, they should get in immediate touch with nearest United States Naturalization examiner so that necessary arrangements may be made for that purpose, the bulletin states.

Waitress Who Got $20,000 Receives Many Proposals of Marriage

Letters containing proposals of marriage and outlining advice as to how to spend the approximately $20,000 fortune which she recently inherited through the death of her father at Anaconda, Mont., are showering Mrs. Hilda Loss Mondou of Minot, "Waitress-heiress" Mrs. Mondou recently became queen of the hearts of many men through a story published in The News, telling of efforts to locate the missing heiress, bequeathed a fortune by a father who had not seen his daughter since she was a child.

The story of Mrs. Mondou's good luck received considerable publicity throughout the country and her picture was syndicated by one of the large eastern news agencies.

Three letters proposing marriage and many others containing advice as to the disposition of the estate have been received thus far by Mrs. Mondou.

New Suitors Appear

But she has ignored them all, although she admits she gets a real "kick" out of reading the missives.

It seems strange that up until a few weeks ago Mr Mondou was the only man in the world who appeared interested in me, but now that I have fallen into a legacy, there are any number desirous of marrying or advising me," she laughingly remarked recently.

Here is one of the typical letters of advice, written by a man who signs his name "Montana" and who asserts that his wife fell heir to a fortune and it "turned her head," and they were separated. The letter was written from Helena, Mont. Thus it reads:

"Dear Mrs. Mondou: Reading an article in a newspaper relative to your plight in being left a legacy and having received a lot of advice. This letter has nothing to do with marriage or investments but is the experience of a fellow creature whose wife was the recipient of a legacy of $750,000. She had similar proposals and various offers to get rich quick through numerous investments.

"The sudden wealth turned her head. Lounge lizards poisoned her against her husband. A separation resulted. Finally getting wise to her new fair weather friends she longs for her husband, who has never ceased to love her. He has had no correspondence with her for four years and will only return to her when her money is placed in sound government securities, the interest of which is to be donated to the upkeep of homeless children. The moral of this is 'money cannot buy happiness.'

"Stick to your husband and if you find that you must part with your money, you'll get a real 'kick' out of giving some of it to the homeless kiddies.

"Sincerely,
"Montana."

TO ORGANIZE AUXILIARY.

Hazelton, N. D., Feb. 1.—Several attempts have been made in the past to organize a branch of the Legion Auxiliary among the eligible ladies of this vicinity, but heretofore interest seemed to have been lacking, and each attempt was a disappointment. Now, however, it is believed an attempt would be successful and as a consequence a meeting will be held in the Legion club rooms, under the bank of Hazelton, Saturday afternoon, February 16, at which time it is hoped the organization can be perfected.

BISMARCK CITIZEN OFFERS STRONG PROOF

INSURANCE BUSINESS HAS QUEER RISK

London, Feb. 11. The removal of Lloyd's insurance business from the premises occupied for 150 years recalls many interesting features in connection with this ancient corporation.

While marine insurance is still the main business, as it has been since Edward Lloyd founded it, members are prepared to underwrite practically any sort of risk, and the records of Lloyd's contain some curious entries. There is the story of one man insuring himself for $100,000 against the consequences of laying violent hands on his mother-in-law. When George II led his troops at the battle of Dettingen, the risk of his returning alive was insured against at 25 percent. In 1817 a policy for $2,000 was issued at a premium of 3 per-[illegible] ceasing to exist or being taken prisoner" within a month.

Nowadays people insure against the weather on holidays, bad crops, measles and all the ailments that flesh is heir to; riots elections, and standard trade affairs.

LARGE PRIZES IN AIR RACES

Dayton, O., Feb. 11.—A substantial prize for a new event, to be run in connection with the international air races at Wilbur Wright field here next fall, to be known as the "powered glider" contest, has been announced by Dayton officials of the National Aeronautic Association, provided there are a sufficient number of entrants.

The finance committee believes there is a large number of such devices now being designed and built throughout the country, and a contest in which the builders would compete would encourage future activities in this direction.

Prizes totaling approximately $50,000 will be distributed to winners of the various races and the committee expects, with such an amount in prize money, that a representative number of entrants from Europe will be encouraged to compete in the more important events.

All costs of the race have been guaranteed. It was reported by the committee that about $150,000 has been underwritten by a large finance concern, with Dayton money behind it. The races will continue three days and arrangements are already being made to handle 300,000 people.

I knew a man who held a state job under Governor John Burke and he became a Democrat," he said. "When Governor Hanna came in he became a Republican. When Governor Lynn J. Frazier and the Nonpartisan League came in power he became a Nonpartisan, and now that Governor Nestos is in he has become an I. V. A."

Rev. Hutcheson struck out at a publication in Bismarck which he said had been seeking to damage the character of patriotic men who had done much for Bismarck.

Influence which he said were at work in 1917 and 1918 were at work again in the attacks upon American citizens, he declared. He mentioned no names during the course of his remarks on this subject, but prefaced them by declaring that the people of Bismarck and the people of America ought to be awake to the fact that there are millions of persons who have come into this country and are seeking to tear down American institutions. Many of them, he asserted, do not want to become American citizens, but want to do all they can to tear down American institutions.

Plump Ankles Lengthen Skirts

London, Feb. 11.—Because women's ankles have increased in size through the wearing of very tight shoes, dresses are to be longer in length. This is what the Paris experts have told proprietors of the principal West-end stores, and it is in the intention of fashion-creators to design dresses in such a way as to give only a slight glimpse of ankles.

EXPERIENCE OF DIVERSE FARM PLAN IS TOLD

F. P. Goodrich Explains Methods He Had Used in Farming Operations

In a recent visit to the city F. P. Goodrich of McKenzie told of the results which he has been receiving from diversification in farming and the good effect on marketing his corn crop on the hoof.

Mr. Goodrich had in 160 acres of corn and recently sold one hundred head of hogs. From his bunch of cattle he picked out twelve cows which he wished to dispose of as culls and twenty-two yearling steers and heifers. These he fed with corn for a number of weeks and recently shipped them to the market receiving an average net price of $44.00 per head. He thinks that this is a good price for yearlings and for the cows which he wished to discard. He also states that he does not see why North Dakota farmers will ship their cattle to South St. Paul or Chicago in an unfinished condition and let the Iowa buyers come on, purchase them, take them home, feed them corn for two or three months and then get all the profit when this might be done just as well in North Dakota.

"We have demonstrated that we can grow here practically as good corn as in South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska and we might as well sell the crop by feeding it to our own cattle and getting the results as allowing this to be done elsewhere," he says. Mr Goodrich is a firm believer in diversification and feels that these methods are worthy of careful consideration by the farmers of the Missouri slope.

GARRISON ORGANIZES BAND—OFFICERS ELECTED

Garrison, N. D., Feb. 11.—Garrison is going to have a live wire band judging by the number of young fellows who answered the call. Some twenty young men signed up and agreed to report for practice and play some instrument or at least try to learn. They seemed very enthused and set to work to make it a success.

The following officers were elected to tak echarge and push it to the very limit: J. A. Reuter, president; Robert Twilling, secretary-treasurer, and E. L. Vorachek, temporary director. They are going to start practice just as soon as some of them can obtain instruments.

HISTORY OF SCOUT TROOP SHOWS WORK

Accomplishments of Boy Scout Troop No. 1 in Bismarck Are Listed

HOLD SUMMER CAMPS

The following history of Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, Bismarck, is published as a part of the observance of "Boy Scout Week" in America, during which the work of the Scouts is being presented to the public:

Troop 1 was organized in December, 1913 by Rev. Bruce E. Jackson, then pastor of the First Baptist Church. The first camp was held at Painted Woods Lake, north of Bismarck, in the latter part of June, 1917. Soon following this, Rev. Jackson went into Y. M. C. A. work in France, and the Troop was left without a scoutmaster. Rev. Call, who succeeded Rev. Jackson, became assistant scoutmaster. During the remainder of the war, the Troop helped greatly, such as selling liberty bonds, war saving stamps and distributing literature. Three members of the Troop received medals for this work. As soon as the war was over, they looked forward to the return of their scoutmaster, only to learn that he was to move to Cheyenne, Wyoming. But somehow, they seemed to hold together in spite of lack of a leader, and a week's camp was held on Apple Creek during the month of June, 1919. The following members were present: Alfred Prater, Bruce Wallace, William Newcomb, Bayert Jacobson, Robert Birdzell, Vernon Frazier, Glen Wallace and Roy Magnue. The following year, the Troop grew fast and the members advanced. A number of winter hikes took place.

Camp Planned

In 1920, camp was planned far in advance, so the attendance was the largest it had ever been—22 in all. They had made a trek-cart in the spring which was quite a help. Nine tents were pitched in a semi-circle, near Apple Creek, and everyone hated to go home, especially as the Hedrixs were so generous with everything. During the fine autumn a number of hikes were taken, especially by the eight first-class members of the troop. It was along about this time of year that the great game of First Aid was invented, so called because of the need for first aid. A merit badge committee was formed and the troop began taking them September 1, 1920 and have been doing so ever since Mr. Hanson became scoutmaster in the fall.

A sucessful week's camp was held in June, 1921 on Apple Creek, although there were less than on the camp of the previous year. Squad tents were used, and each patrol had its own tent. Mr. MacLeod was with them part time, and a number of tests were passed. There was constant activity in the merit badge line during the summer and fall. Bruce Wallace became Eagle August 1 and Glen Wallace on October 12. A bird study contest was held during the whole of the year 1921, and 111 birds were reported. About this time, Scoutmaster Hanson started agitation for a cabin, which was immediately taken up by the troop. Money was raised by a supper, and the actual work began. A cabin committee was chosen, and Mr. Ward gave them consent both to build a cabin on his land, and cut down logs for it. Work was started at the end of the year, and progressed rapidly through the winter and spring. At the time of its dedication to Rev. Jackson in May 1922, it was well towards completion, lacking windows, door, stove and floor.

In the spring, the Scout Eagle was started by three of the troops, and was managed by a staff from their troops.

Two Camps Held

That summer, two camps were held, this time on Heart River, six miles west of Mandan. The first camp was a decided success, 25 merit badges being taken, while 41 in that month made it a banner month. The camp was managed by a camp committee, composed of the scouts themselves. A second camp was held, due to the fact that Alfred Prater and Bruce Wallace were attending the University of Minnesota, which let out after the first camp. Two weeks after the first camp, eight members spent a week on Heart River.

In the fall of 1922 it seemed as though most of the members moved away. Four moved to California, two to Grand Forks, one to Texas, one to Driscoll, three to Fargo, and two to New York. Nine of these were merit badge scouts, so it left the troop rather depleted. Mr. Hanson had resigned as the character of his work carried him out of town so much. Mr. S. O. LeBarron, the present scoutmaster, was then chosen, and under him the Troop went along as usual. A successful supper was held, and the cabin debt paid off. The cabin was made habitable, and it was used a number of times during the winter.

Plans for camp, were laid early, and, like the year before, two were held on Heart River. Meetings were held during the summer, and work went right on. A cement floor was put in the cabin, and the whole cabin was re-chinked. In the fall the troop lost four assistant scoutmasters—going to the University of North Dakota and other places. During the past few months the active membership has been increased to 23.

Even though many scouts have left the city, their interest has not. Troop 1A has been formed of the out-of-town members of Troop 1, and practically all of them are registered at Headquarters through Troop 1. At present the membership is 17 active and 2 associate, the latter having moved back to Bismarck. Troop 1A runs a bird study contest and published a paper once a week during the school year. The membership includes Alfred and Arthur Prater, Denman Schutt, California; Arthur Carlson, Washington; Manning Finwall, Gordon Finwall, Fargo; George Russ, Barton Muir, Robert Birdzell, Herbert Zvorist, University of North Dakota; Bayert Jacobson, Huron, South Dakota; William Newcomb, Rochester, New York; Bruce and Glen Wallace, New York City; Mr. Geo. E. Wallace, Willis Frazier, Washington, D. C.; Allen Van Fleet, Driscoll, North Dakota; Silas Edberg and Richard Day, associates, Bismarck.

Troop 1 now has a membership of 23 active scouts, scoutmaster, 12 assistant scoutmasters, 7 associate scouts, besides a number in Troop 1A who are not registered. To date Troop 1 has 288 merit badges, and has graduated 2 Eagle Scouts and 4 Star Scouts.

PRIZES AWARDED BY MODERN DAIRY COMPANY

Essays Submitted Show Importance of Milk Supply

As a result of the Essay Contest conducted in the City High and Grade schools by the Modern Dairy Co., Miss Laura Rupp won the cash prize of $5 for the best essay submitted, Emma Weber, $3 for second prize and Dorothy Birdzell, $2 for the 3rd prize.

In the grades, Brennan Davis won the cash prize of $5 for the best essay, Dennis Welliver, the $3 prize for second and Margeret Register the $2 prize for 3rd best.

It would appear that schools, public health agencies, and the people in general could well afford to emphasize the value of milk and the best methods to be used in the proper care and handling of the same. The public in general is not familiar with the vital importance of this subject. Milk cannot be pasteurized or clarified on the average farm. Practically all milk used on the farm must be used in the raw stage. The need of keeping the milk clean and pure is at once recognized. The milk as it comes from the cow is pure, if the cow is healthy. If milk is unclean it is due to the lack of care in washing and sterilizing of the milk utensils, and not properly cooling it at once. The care and food value of milk products could be stressed more in the schools than it is at this time. Much effort was required on the part of the judges to select the winners of a large number of excellent essays. The students taking part in the contest showed considerable knowledge of this very important subject.

We are fortunate here in having milk plants equipped with proper equipment for properly canning the milk.

Value of Milk as a Food.

Food is used for three reasons: 1. Fuel food to provide power and keep us warm. 2. Building food for building up the tissues. 3. Regulating food for keeping the body in good working order.

Both human and animal babies are given milk to give them a start in life, so milk must contain all the kinds of food the body needs.

Milk has much protein in it. Protein means "the most important." The chief business of protein is for supplying material for growth and repair.

No child wants to be stunted, and that is how he will be unless he has enough protein so he can grow.

Many people think milk is only a drink, but the health books say, that a glass of milk has as much protein as a large egg or one and one-third ounces of meat. It is a pity that more people do not understand how good a food milk is.

Other protein foods, like eggs and meat, have not as much protein as milk ,so then, milk is cheaper, even if it were fifteen cents a quart. That is much cheaper than eggs or meat.

Milk, too, contains fat, sugar and vitamines

Even in skim milk and in buttermilk most of the protein and sugar and lime of whole milk are found. We are only beginning to know about vitamines. Every boy or girl should use a pint of milk a day while children under six should use a quart. Grown people should have some every day. "Buy milk and save money" is a good slogan for housekeepers.

You can't get on the football team if you are underweight. Your can't win out anywhere if you are not strong. If you want to be a husky—drink milk.

Milk makes might.
Whose all right?
The milk man!

Brennan B. Davis,
Sixth Grade.

Why Milk Should Be Clarified and and Pasteurized.

The question of milk, its value and care is of grave importance to every American family. It has been estimated that one-sixth of the weight of food eaten by the average American family is milk. Milk contains the protein, fat, sugar, mineral matter and vitamins, all of which are necessary for the development of a strong, healthy body.

Milk is often the most valuable food for infants, young children and invalids. But in many cases raw milk contains disease germs and harmful bacteria which causes it to be worse than invalid for the naturally weak.

Pasteurization has been termed the priceless safeguard of public health. But before milk is pasteurized it should be clarified; that is, the minute, invisible particles of foreign matter, whether soluble or insoluble, which cannot be removed by the finest stainer but which, none the less, are harmful and often cause the repugnant taste of milk, must be removed. No matter how carefully the milk has been handled before and after it reaches the dairy the clarification is always necessary to keep the milk clear, clean and pure.

Pasteurization is the common method, now extensiveiy employed, of applying a high temperature to milk so as to destroy as many bacteria as possible without producing undesirable changes in the milk.

Milk should be pasteurized because; first, pasteurization renders milk safe for bacteria and lowers the total bacterial content of milk. The heating process kills many germs and the cooling checks the growth of others.

Secondly, pasteurization delays the souring of milk because it checks the bacteria which cause milk to sour. Under normal conditions pasteurized milk should keep sweet twelve hours longer than raw milk.

Thirdly, pasteurization destroys or renders harmless any disease germs which may be present in the milk. Among the germs which it kills are those of typhoid fever, diptheria and tuberculosis. These germs may be in the milk because is was drawn from diseased cows; because persons connected with the conveyance of the milk carried the germs or the milk may have become contaminated by flies. It has been stated that the chief cause of tuberculosis is milk containing these germs and that from six to seven per cent of milk on the market contains bovine tubercle bacilli.

In the fourth place, pasteurization aids in the removal of weed and feed flavors. Clarification removes a large portion and pasteurization removes much of the disagreeable flavor which remains.

Fifthly, the acidity of milk is slightly reduced by pasteurization.

Bad milk cannot be made perfect but the danger from it's consumption may be lessened. Boiled milk is as safe as pasteurized milk but is more difficult to digest. It has been said that pasteurized milk is as easy to digest as raw milk.

Extreme care should be taken by all who come in contact with milk in any place to keep it clean, cool and covered and in a place free from odors and flavors.

"WHY I BELIEVE IN BOY SCOUTS" IS TOLD BY CITIZENS OF CITY

"Why I believe in the Boy Scout Movement," is the subject of expressions by several Bismarck citizens as given to those in charge of the Boy Scout movement in the city, as a part of the effort to disseminate knowledge concerning the Scout movement during "Boy Scout Week," Expressions follow:

G. H. Russ, Jr. "Why am I in favor of the Boy Scouts? In answer to your question I am in favor of any movement which teaches a boy the principles of fair play, of truthfulness; that directs his energies along right lines; that appeals to the manly side of a boy; that demands hard work; intelligent study and a knowledge of the practical application of his studies; that conducts his athletics and pastimes along sensibly organized paths and as the Boy Scouts seem to be the leaders in this direction, may the movement grow and prosper."

Mrs. H. F. O'Hare—" I believe in the Boy Scout movement because its great aim and object is to make of my boy a better citizen.

"A boy must be kept busy, in fact he will keep busy in a right or wrong way. A boy is a gregarious animal and travels in herds or gangs. In order to control or direct his activities in this line, the Boy Scout organization was started. Both work and play that is clean and healthful make up these activities and also are attractive enough to keep the boy interested and happy. Now it is, when a boy is thoroughly enjoying himself, that a conscientious director can bring out the very best that is in him.

"I think it must be with something of the same feeling that "Dad" goes to his lodge or club, that our boy goes to his Scout Council, so in this day of clubs among older people, this organization supplies that demand among boys,—a band of boys, affording the companionship of others of his own age and all alike intensely interested in the sports, dear to the hearts of a lad. He gets an outlet for his energy, he gets discipline that makes of him a manly boy and he gets mental training that arouses him to be keen and alert and able to look out for himself.

"I love and admire the Scout Oath, and I think that if he is taught to keep this vow, he can not go far wrong. The first point—duty to God and country instills in him a reverence and patriotism of which the youth of our country cannot get too much. Second point—service to others—brings out in his nature that quality which is truly noble. 3rd point—keeping himself physically, mentally, and morally fit is indeed worth while. In short the Boy Scout movement offers the opportunity to develop the highest and best type of man and I am very proud to have my boy—'A Scout.'"

Makes Them Self-Reliant

George F. Will—"I have had occasion to observe the Boy Scout movement for several years now and am glad to say that I approve of it thoroughly. It puts the boys through an all-around course and turns out manly, self-reliant young fellows, who can be depended upon.

"Recreation and Education are combined in almost ideal proportions and self-reliance is especially taught. A high standard of morals is inculcated as a basis of requirements in admission and, I believe, it is usually lived up to, and usually well.

"I am only sorry that I cannot see a great many more boys in the Scouts than ordinarily get into it. The better class and those of higher intelligence seem to be primarily the ones that seek it out and benefit from it. There are many who need it worse but who do not seem to have the ambition to get in contact with it. I do not know of any experience during the formative years of a boy's life that can benefit him more, both at the time and during his future life than belonging to the Boy Scouts."

Why He Joined Scouts

Neil Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Cameron, a member of the Scouts, tells, "Why I Joined the Boy Scouts" as follows:

"At the age of ten years I joined the Episcopal "Cub" Scouts or Junior Scouts. We had hikes and passed tests just as the older scouts did. Later our Scouts broke up. I had to practice tests and go hiking by myself. I found that when I was older I could join the senior scouts.

"I had heard that the scouts had gone to camp in the summer time and had a lot of fun, there was a good swimming place there as all boys like to swim, I could hardly wait until I was twelve.

"In the winter of 1923 during Scout Week the Scouts had a drill at the Auditorium where they showed many useful things they did, I then thought it would be nice to join.

"Last summer I was twelve. In September I tried to get in and made it. Oh boy, I was glad I made it. I waited a couple of meetings before I started taking tests. I borrowed a rope and started practicing tying knots to be a Tenderfoot Scout, it was hard but I made it. It did not take much to pass the other tests so I got to be a Tenderfoot.

"Boys get in the Boy Scouts—its great."

SHIFTING OF CROP ACREAGE IN N. D. SHOWN

Annual Report of Federal Statistician Reveals Slump in Wheat, Potatoes

CORN ACREAGE GAINS

Production in 1923 was 7,000,000 Bushels of Corn Above That of 1922

Acreage shifts between crops in North Dakota were pronounced during 1923, according to the annual report of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates, announced in Grand Forks today by J. G. Diamond, agricultural statistician.

Principal crop productions follow:

Spring wheat	58,660,000 bu.
Corn	28,207,000 bu.
Durum wheat	27,632,000 bu.
Oats	54,924,000 bu.
Barley	23,818,000 bu.
Rye	10,046,000 bu.
Flax	8,424,000 bu.
Potatoes	13,114,000 bu.

The value of corn and flax crops produced in the state was greater than during 1922, but the value of other crops was less, and the total crop value also was less.

Corn yields per acre were higher than any time during the past 10 years. Average yields of flax and tame hay also were somewhat above their 10-year averages and yields of oats, barley and potatoes were somewhat under their 10-year averages.

The 1923 corn crop was 28,207,000 bushels, as compared to the five-year average (1917-21) of 11,956,000 bushels. The crop was seven million bushels above that of 1922. The total farm value of the crop in 1923 was $15,232,000 as compared to $11,368,000 in 1922, and the acre value in 1923 was $18.09, compared to $14.58 the previous year.

Shifts Shown.

The report in part follows:

There was a moderate decrease in the total acreage devoted to the nine principal field crops in North Dakota in 1923, compared with 1922. These nine crops in 1923 accounted for 18,867,000 acres, which based upon census proportions in 1919 is indicated to have been 96 per cent of a theoretical total of 19,653,000 acres in all crops. In 1922 this aggregate total was 19,983,000 acres, with 19,184,000 devoted to the nine crops, while in 1921 the aggregate total was 19,309,000 acres, with 18,537,000 acres devoted to the nine principal crops.

Acreage shifts as between crops were large as has been the case in North Dakota in recent years. Spring wheat acreage was cut 718,000 acres due in part to the late spring and the small amount of 1922 fall-plowing on which the bulk of seeding is done in the eastern third of the state. Part of the decrease in wheat acreage went into the complementary crop, barley, which was increased 353,000 acres. The shift to barley rather than to oats appeared to have been due to barley having maintained a more attractive market price during the preceding season. Rye and flax acreages of which North Dakota has a large proportion of the national total also show strong shifts, rye decreasing 422,000 acres and flax more than doubling its acreage with an increase of 573,000. Unattractive markets for rye following the big 922 crop, and an unfavorable fall for plowing and seeding (1922) were the principal causes for the rye acreage decrease, while the attractive market that has prevailed for flax under tariff protection was the principal cause for the shift in flax acreage. Potato acreage was cut strongly as a result of the big overproduction of this crop in the state in 1922. Corn and tame hay acreages were moderately increased. Oats acreage remained the same as in 1922 and the acreage of lands cut for wild hay was moderately curtailed.

Production Shifts in 1923.

A reduction in the spring wheat crop to 58,560,000 bushels or about 68 million bushels less than the 1922 crop was also cut to less than half of the 1922 production, with oats and barley showing more moderate losses, due to somewhat better yield per acre. The poor yields for the small grain, as has been the case in this state quite often were responsible for shifts in production that were much out of proportion to the acreage changes.

Production of corn in 1923 was about a third larger than the 1922 crop and flax production following closely its acreage shift increased about 4 million bushels, almost doubling the 1922 crop. Hay production was but slightly less than that of 1922, and sufficient for a normal winters need. Potato production was about a third smaller than the 1922 crop but well over the average production for the period 1917-1921.

Shifts in Farm Value.

The pronounced decrease in spring wheat production and a somewhat lower value per bushel accounts for this crop having in 1923 a farm value of less than half of the 1922 valuation of $113,956,000, the 1923 crop being valued at $50,448,000. Rye, oats, barley, potatoes and the hay crops were also valued lower than in 1922. Corn and flax were valued higher than in 1922 but were unable to offset the other losses as is shown by the total value of the nine crops, which was $141,316,000 in 1923 and $214,316,000 in 1922.

WILL VOTE ON COMPENSATION

Lloyd Spetz Post, American Legion, Will Hold Meeting

Ex-service men of Bismarck will vote on the question of adjusted compensation, at a meeting of Lloyd Spetz Post, to be held Wednesday night, February 13.

Every ex-service man, whether a member of the Legion or not, is invited to the meeting, which is to be held in the A. O. U. W. hall on Fourth street.

There also will be shown a moving picture film of the Pendleton Roundup.

"The Cootie," the Lloyd Spetz post's new mimmeograph monthly bulletin from the post's G. H. Q. announces that many fine programs are being arranged for the future meetings. A. Baker, deputy state tax commissioner, will speak on taxation on February 27.

The post membership, as a result of the recent campaign, shows a 37 percent increase over last year, with the campaign still in progress.

SUSPEND NEW DEPOSIT RULE

Railroad Commission to Investigate Hughes Petition

The state railroad commission has suspended for 120 days, pending investigation, the application of the Hughes Electric Company for permission to establish new meter deposit rules. The rules would have been effective today. The city of Bismarck entered a formal protest against them on the ground that the company could require deposit of several thousand dollars by consumers for its own use.

The reopened hearing in the rate case of the local electric utility was concluded after additional testimony had been introduced by commission employes. E. H. Morris, chief engineer, answering questions of petitioners' attorney said, that E. A. Hughes, general manager of the company, had no meter at his house, receiving free service. Petitioners protested that under rule of the commission this free service should be abolished.

Democrats: Bruce—1. Total—34.

Nine senators were absent and six others Glass, Harrison, Jones of New Mexico, Owen, Smith and Stanley, all Democrats—were unable to cast their ballots because they were paired with absentees. They announced that if permitted to vote they would support the resolution.

The Resolution

The text of the resolution as adopted follows:

"Whereas, the United States senate did, on January 31, 1924, by a unanimous vote, adopt senate joint resolution under 54, to procure the annulment of certain leases in the naval oil reserves of the United States; and,

"Whereas, the said resolution, among other things, declared as follows:

"Whereas, it appears from evidence taken by the committee on public lands and survey of the United States senate that certain lease of naval reserve numbered 3, in the state of Wyoming, bearing date April 7, 1922, made in form by the government of the United States, through Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, as lessee, and that certain contract between the government of the United States and the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, dated April 25, 1922, signed by Edward C. Finney, acting secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, relating among other things to the construction of oil tanks at Pearl Harbor, territory of Hawaii, and that certain lease of naval reserve numbered 1, in the state of California, bearing date December 11, 1922, made in form by the government of the United States through Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, as lessor, to the Pan American Petroleum company as lessee, were executed under circumstances indicating fraud and corruption; and,

"Whereas, the said leases and contract were entered into without authority on the part of the officers purporting to act in the execution of the same for the United States and in violation of the laws of congress; and,

"Whereas, such leases and contract were made in defiance of the settled policy of the government, adhered to through three successive administrations, to maintain in the ground a great reserve supply of oil adequate to the needs of the navy in any emergency threatened the national security.

"Therefore, be it,

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the United States senate that the president of the United States immediately request the resignation of Edwin Denby as secretary of the navy."

This measure was a substitute for the original resolution offered by Democratic leader Robinson before the senate adopted the Walsh resolution for the annulment of the oil leases.

ASKS HEARING

Washington, Feb. 12.—A hearing on the Wheeler resolution requesting his resignation was asked for by Attorney General Daugherty in a letter yesterday to Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio.

Mr. Daugherty declared full authorization should be granted a senate committee to proceed with a hearing so that "Senator Wheeler and those interested with him in the subject matter of this resolution may be fully heard and the president and the country fully informed and the matter disposed of on its merits."

IDEAL CABINET FROM BIBLE

London, Feb. 12.—A politically inclined minister of the Church of England has constructed what he considers to be an ideal cabinet, drawing all the office holders from the Bible.

The rector has nominated St. Stephen as prime minister "because he is likely to show the nation and the individual a most irresistible combination of personality and intelligence." For home secretary, Tabitha and Priscilla are passed over in favor of Rachael, "a woman all the way through." Joshua is given the post of secretary for war, while Adam comes in as minister of agriculture.

Other nominations include: St. Matthew, chancellor of the exchequer; Timothy, board of education; Gallio, lord chancellor.

EGGS USEFUL IN ENGLAND

London, Feb. 12.—Eggs are not just eggs here, and for a housewife to replenish her supply of the breakfast staple by merely ordering a dozen eggs, as is the American custom, would dismay an English shopkeeper.

Eggs are nicely graded and classified, and shops display them in bins with descriptive legends attached. There are cooking eggs, imported eggs, Irish eggs, local new laid eggs, preserved eggs, breakfast eggs, Surrey new laid eggs, fresh eggs, local fresh eggs, local farmhouse eggs, pullets' eggs, extra large eggs, ducks' eggs (local), and ducks' eggs (farmhouse). They range in price from forty to ninety cents a dozen.

Millions of eggs are imported annually from China, and there is always a possibility of adventure for the bored housekeeper in opening one of these imported products. Recently a member of the House of Commons complained to the government that one of his loyal constituents had discovered in her kitchen a lizard which had been hatched from an egg brought in from China.

WON'T CLOSE FORKS MILL

Fargo, Feb. 12.—There is no truth in the rumor current during the past day or two, that the state mill and elevator at Grand Forks is to close, Governor R. A. Nestos stated in Fargo Sunday. The governor was enroute to Bismarck from Grand Forks after attending a meeting of the board of managers and the industrial commission.

"Yesterday's meeting was very successful," said the governor. "Matters at the mill were found to be in good shape. The mill may be closed for a few days for a check of the books but it is not to be closed permanently by any means. The state mill is to be given a full and fair test of operation that the people of the state may know whether or not the mill and elevator is practicable. There is no truth to any rumor that the state mill and elevator is to be closed."

BANK RECORD IS FILED

Depositors Guaranty Fund Commission Case Advanced

Record in the case of A. J. Wirtz, a depositor in the closed Security State Bank of New England, which is expected to bring before the court the question of how the Guaranty Fund Commission should proceed to settle with depositors of closed banks, has been certified to the supreme court. It is understood attorneys may ask for a hearing preceding the March term of court.

In this case District Judge Pugh of Dickinson held the Guaranty Fund Commission was not sueable. It is asked by attorneys for the plaintiff that the court decide whether the Guaranty Fund Commission should proceed to reimburse all depositors of the Security Bank or whether it should distribute the funds it has on hand equally among all depositors of closed banks. It is because the law has not been settled on this point that no distribution of Guaranty Commission funds has been made, according to members.

GRAND OPERA IN BERLIN

Berlin, Feb. 12.—Four theatres in Berlin are today devoted to the production of grand opera, the Kroll Opera House having recently joined the ranks with the production of "Die Meistersinger."

Doubt is expressed in the press as to whether the Prussian state can afford to support both the State Opera House and the Kroll Opera House, which run in competition with the privately supported Charlottenburg Opera and Volks Opera. But the Kroll Opera House gets all its musicians from the state opera, with the exception of 30, and a great effort apparently is being made to spare expense. Furthermore, the prices in the opera houses have now risen to world standards, but in spite of that fact all four of the houses in Berlin attract large crowds.

In addition to the two opera houses the state also supports two theatres in Berlin, the State Theatre and the Schiller Theatre. Both of these theatres confine their repertoire chiefly to standard plays.

BOUND OVER ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPING

Fargo, Feb. 12.—Henry Ramsden of Moorhead was bound over to Cass county district court by Judge Leigh J. Monson after a preliminary hearing lasting practically all day, on a charge of kidnapping H. G. Russell, wealthy Fargo man, on April 10 of last year. His bonds were increased from $500 to $2,000.

Ramsden was one of five defendants in the kidnapping case. Two of the others, Carl and Theodore Hansen, waived preliminary hearing some time ago and were bound over to district court, and the other two, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burley, will probably be given their hearing next Monday. All are from Moorhead.

High Prices Make High Wages

Dublin, Feb. 12.—The high cost of living in Dublin is keeping up wages and increasing the difficulty of readjustments between employers and workmen. Porter, regarded as an essential food by laborers, still costs eight pence a pint in this city, though sold for six pence in the provinces and for five in Manchester. Half of the bankrupts are farmers, while the retailers who sell their produce are said to be growing rich.

The government declines to intervene in the situation, and urges that consumers use discrimination in buying.

Japanese To Preserve Custom

Yokohama, Feb. 12.—Relatives of earthquake victims whose bodies have not been recovered have protested against the construction of building on ground under which bodies are supposed to be buried. Only temporary buildings are being permitted by the government pending the competition of the reconstruction program.

The protests are being made because of the traditional Japanese custom which makes it a duty to have at least a portion of a relative's body for burial.

PORTUGAL CUTS EXPENSES

Lisbon, Feb. 12.—Under the leadership of Alvardo de Castro, the government is continuing its policy of reducing expenditure. It has already abolished 614 posts.

THIRD PARTY CONVENTION IS PROPOSED

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—A resolution adopted today at the convention of the national conference for progressive political action calls for a convention of "workers, farmers and progressives" at Cleveland, starting July 4. Delegates explained this action "paved the way" for a third major political party.

The resolution sets forth that the convention shall be "for the purpose of taking action on the nomination of candidates for the office of president and vice president and on other questions that may come before the convention."

MILLION TO BE SUBSCRIBED IN MILL CITY

Stock Subscriptions to $10,000,000 Northwest Aid Body Coming in Fast

Minneapolis, Feb. 12.—A million dollars of the stock of the new finance service corporation, which is to organize at Chicago Thursday with $10,000,000 capital stock to relieve the financial emergency in the northwest, will be subscribed in Minnesota by railroads, banks and industrial concerns, C. T. Jaffray, president of the Soo line, and E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National bank, said.

Subscriptions already are being pledged and the full quota from this state is expected.

Virtually all of the $10,000,000 together with the corporation's borrowing capacity from the War Finance corporation, which will be up to $100,000,000, is to become available in the northwest, reports from Chicago indicated.

Eastern bankers and industries already have subscribed $5,000,000 to the corporation's capital stock. With $1,000,000 from Minnesota, the remainder is to be made up by subscriptions in other industrial centers. A million each from Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland is expected to be subscribed at the Chicago meeting, completing the capital stock.

The reports from Chicago, strengthened by the fact the south is not being asked for subscriptions, are that the corporation is to function primarily in the northwest wheat growing territory. In that event Twin City members of the organization expressed the belief that the headquarters would be in Minneapolis.

A northwest banker, familiar with the needs of the northwest territory, is expected to become the president of the corporation. He probably will be named Thursday, together with other officers. Mr. Jaffray, who formerly was president of the First National bank and who is familiar with the northwest, probably will be named chairman of the board of directors.

Says Rembrandt Painted Self

The Hague, Feb. 12.—Professor Martin of Mauritshuis, the local art gallery, has published an article in which he expresses the opinion that Rembrandt painted a portrait of himself in "The Night Watch," the celebrated picture which is the gem of the Amsterdam Gallery.

Martin believes the man standing between the ensign and one of the patricians in the picture is Rembrandt, a self-portrait done in the style of his portraits from 1639 to 1645.

LINCOLN DAY IS OBSERVED

Programs Are Held in the Schools of the City

Lincoln Day was fittingly observed in all the schools of the city, today by appropriate exercises of some form. In the public high school Judge Sveinbjorn Johnson advised the students in assembly upon the life of Lincoln. In the Will school, E. J. Taylor, talked to the 5th and 6th Grades, while in the lower grades special exercises were conducted. Mr. Harrington of the American Legion talked to the students of the Junior High school and the Richholt school upon Lincoln and J. P. Jackson addressed the students of the Wachter and Roosevelt school upon the childhood of Lincoln. In the St. Mary's school a program and a moving picture show was being given in the school auditorium, this afternoon. The ideals of American citizenship as exemplified by Lincoln in his life were in this manner set before the student body of the city.

At The Movies

THE ELTINGE

"Flaming Youth" shown at the Eltinge theatre yesterday while entertaining to the eye with its gay whirl of jazz, glorified and depraved; jazz, aggravated and yet not exaggerated, is a greater entertainment to the mind built as it is around the nearly pitiful story of little "Pat" Fentriss surrounded by the mad, abandoned existence of a family with thoughts only for the thrill of new and greater "punch" in life. The picture is as entertaining though not as daring as the book. The outstanding theme is Pat's devious course through this path of distraction with ideals of what makes true happiness distorted by the spectacle of a father and mother and two married sisters barely on speaking terms with their husband, "love in ashes, killed by marriage" as she expresses it. Small wonder that she conceives marriage as putting the quietus on happiness. It is pleasant to see her safely through the dangers and secure in the true philosophy of life at the close.

Colleen Moore playing "Pat," enacts her role with amazing realism, maintaining always her purer ideals despite her surrender to curiosity. Myrtle Stedman, playing the mother, once again demonstrates that she is an actress of no unimportant degree. She is perfectly cast. Milton Sills, and Elliott Dexter also contribute fine parts.

"Flaming Youth" is worth seeing. There is something new in its quality that approaches poetry, or silent music. It's a whirl, a dip, a high kick and a shimmy.

"Flaming Youth" shows again today and tomorrow at the Eltinge.

CAPITOL

Kenneth Harlan, who accidentally shot himself in the street duel scene in Tom Forman's Preferred Picture, "The Virginian," not only disobeyed his physician's orders to remain in bed but returned to the B. P. Schulberg Studios and insisted on working twenty-four hours straight to finish his part of the scenes in the picture, which is now to be seen at the Capitol theater.

At the end of the night and day appearance before the camera the actor was in a sorry plight. His leg was swollen and inflamed and he walked with difficulty. During the acting of the scenes he had refrained from limping and the tensing of his leg muscles in an effort to walk naturally, aggravated his wound.

Director Forman and other members of the company were unaware that Kenneth was undergoing so much physical agony, as he made no complaint. When the director asked how he felt and if he could go on, he had the same reply:

"Keep shooting. I am all right."

Dr. J. J. O'Brien, who has been attending Harlan, was called in as soon as the actor reached his home, 6545 Fountain Ave. The physician declared his patient would be confined to his home for several days as danger of infection had not passed.

SAVING FOR A PURPOSE

Saving for a specific purpose often furnishes an incentive that makes it easier to save.

For example, many people anticipate their insurance premiums and their tax payments by setting something aside each month to meet them—in other words prorate these expenses over a twelve months period.

The strain of these expenditures on ones monthly salary is thus eliminated. In addition, interest is paid and compounded quarterly if the money is deposited in a savings account.

High Prices Make High Wages

Dublin, Feb. 12.—The high cost of living in Dublin is keeping up wages and increasing the difficulty of readjustments between employers and workmen. Porter, regarded as an essential food by laborers, still costs eight pence a pint in this city, though sold for six pence in the provinces and for five in Manchester. Half of the bankrupts are farmers, while the retailers who sell their produce are said to be growing rich.

The government declines to intervene in the situation, and urges that consumers use discrimination in buying.

Japanese To Preserve Custom

Yokohama, Feb. 12.—Relatives of earthquake victims whose bodies have not been recovered have protested against the construction of building on ground under which bodies are supposed to be buried. Only temporary buildings are being permitted by the government pending the competition of the reconstruction program.

The protests are being made because of the traditional Japanese custom which makes it a duty to have at least a portion of a relative's body for burial.

Lisbon, Feb. 12.—Under the leadership of Alvardo de Castro, the government is continuing its policy of reducing expenditure. It has already abolished 614 posts.

THIRD PARTY 'CONVENTION IS PROPOSED

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—A resolution adopted today at the convention of the national conference for progressive political action calls for a convention of "workers, farmers and progressives" at Cleveland, starting July 4. Delegates explained this action "paved the way" for a third major political party.

The resolution sets forth that the convention shall be "for the purpose of taking action on the nomination of candidates for the office of president and vice president and on other questions that may come before the convention."

MILLION TO BE SUBSCRIBED IN MILL CITY

Stock Subscriptions to $10,000,000 Northwest Aid Body Coming in Fast

Minneapolis, Feb. 12.—A million dollars of the stock of the new finance service corporation, which is to organize at Chicago Thursday with $10,000,000 capital stock to relieve the financial emergency in the northwest, will be subscribed in Minnesota by railroads, banks and industrial concerns, C. T. Jaffray, president of the Soo line, and E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National bank, said.

Subscriptions already are being pledged and the full quota from this state is expected.

Virtually all of the $10,000,000 together with the corporation's borrowing capacity from the War Finance corporation, which will be up to $100,000,000, is to become available in the northwest, reports from Chicago indicated.

Eastern bankers and industries already have subscribed $5,000,000 to the corporation's capital stock. With $1,000,000 from Minnesota, the remainder is to be made up by subscriptions in other industrial centers. A million each from Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland is expected to be subscribed at the Chicago meeting, completing the capital stock.

The reports from Chicago, strengthened by the fact the south is not being asked for subscriptions, are that the corporation is to function primarily in the northwest wheat growing territory. In that event Twin City members of the organization expressed the belief that the headquarters would be in Minneapolis.

A northwest banker, familiar with the needs of the northwest territory, is expected to become the president of the corporation. He probably will be named Thursday, together with other officers. Mr. Jaffray, who formerly was president of the First National bank and who is familiar with the northwest, probably will be named chairman of the board of directors.

Says Rembrandt Painted Self

The Hague, Feb. 12.—Professor Martin of Mauritshuis, the local art gallery, has published an article in which he expresses the opinion that Rembrandt painted a portrait of himself in "The Night Watch," the celebrated picture which is the gem of the Amsterdam Gallery.

Martin believes the man standing between the ensign and one of the patricians in the picture is Rembrandt, a self-portrait done in the style of his portraits from 1639 to 1645.

LINCOLN DAY IS OBSERVED

Programs Are Held in the Schools of the City

Lincoln Day was fittingly observed in all the schools of the city, today by appropriate exercises of some form. In the public high school Judge Sveinbjorn Johnson advised the students in assembly upon the life of Lincoln. In the Will school, E. J. Taylor, talked to the 5th and 6th Grades, while in the lower grades special exercises were conducted. Mr. Harrington of the American Legion talked to the students of the Junior High school and the Richholt school upon Lincoln and J. P. Jackson addressed the students of the Wachter and Roosevelt school upon the childhood of Lincoln. In the St. Mary's school a program and a moving picture show was being given in the school auditorium, this afternoon. The ideals of American citizenship as exemplified by Lincoln in his life were in this manner set before the student body of the city.

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE

"Flaming Youth" shown at the Eltinge theatre yesterday while entertaining to the eye with its gay whirl of jazz, glorified and depraved; jazz, aggravated and yet not exaggerated, is a greater entertainment to the mind built as it is around the nearly pitiful story of little "Pat" Fentriss surrounded by the mad, abandoned existence of a family with thoughts only for the thrill of new and greater "punch" in life. The picture is as entertaining though not as daring as the book. The outstanding theme is Pat's devious course through this path of distraction with ideals of what makes true happiness distorted by the spectacle of a father and mother and two married sisters barely on speaking terms with their husband, "love in ashes, killed by marriage" as she expresses it. Small wonder that she conceives marriage as putting the quietus on happiness. It is, pleasant to see her safely through the dangers and secure in the true philosophy of life at the close.

Colleen Moore playing "Pat," enacts her role with amazing realism, maintaining always her purer ideals despite her surrender to curiosity. Myrtle Stedman, playing the mother, once again demonstrates that she is an actress of no unimportant degree. She is perfectly cast. Milton Sills, and Elliott Dexter also contribute fine parts.

"Flaming Youth" is worth seeing. There is something new in its quality that approaches poetry, or silent music. It's a whirl, a dip, a high kick and a shimmy.

"Flaming Youth" shows again today and tomorrow at the Eltinge.

CAPITOL.

Kenneth Harlan, who accidentally shot himself in the street duel scene in Tom Forman's Preferred Picture, "The Virginian," not only disobeyed his physician's orders to remain in bed but returned to the B. P. Schulberg Studios and insisted on working twenty-four hours straight to finish his part of the scenes in the picture, which is now to be seen at the Capitol theater.

At the end of the night and day appearance before the camera the actor was in a sorry plight. His leg was swollen and inflamed and he walked with difficulty. During the acting of the scenes he had refrained from limping and the tensing of his leg muscles in an effort to walk naturally, aggravated his wound.

Director Forman and other members of the company were unaware that Kenneth was undergoing so much physical agony, as he made no complaint. When the director asked how he felt and if he could go on, he had the same reply:

"Keep shooting. I am all right."

Dr. J. J. O'Brien, who has been attending Harlan, was called in as soon as the actor reached his home, 6545 Fountain Ave. The physician declared his patient would be confined to his home for several days as danger of infection had not passed.

SAVING FOR A PURPOSE

Saving for a specific purpose often furnishes an incentive that makes it easier to save.

For example, many people anticipate their insurance premiums and their tax payments by setting something aside each month to meet them—in other words prorate these expenses over a twelve months period.

The strain of these expenditures on ones monthly salary is thus eliminated. In addition, interest is paid and compounded quarterly if the money is deposited in a savings account.

HISTORY OF SCOUT TROOP SHOWS WORK

HOLD SUMMER CAMPS

The following history of Troop No 1, Boy Scouts of America, Bismarck is published as a part of the observance of "Boy Scout Week" in America, during which the work of the Scouts is being presented to the public;

Troop 1 was organized in December, 1913 by Rev Bruce E Jackson, then pastor of the First Baptist Church. The first camp was held at Painted Woods Lake, north of Bismarck, in the latter part of June, 1917. Soon following this, Rev Jackson went into Y M C A work in France, and the Troop was left without a scoutmaster. Rev Call, who succeeded Rev Jackson, became assistant scoutmaster during the remainder of the war, the Troop helped greatly, such as selling liberty bonds, war saving stamps and distributing literature. Three members of the Troop received medals for this work. As soon as the war was over, they looked forward to the return of their scoutmaster, only to learn that he was to move to Cheyenne, Wyoming. But somehow, they seemed to hold together in spite of lack of a leader, and a week's camp was held on Apple Creek during the month of June, 1919 The following members were present: Alfred Prater, Bruce Wallace, William Newcomb, Bayert Jacobson, Robert Birdzell, Vernon Frazier, Glen Wallace and Roy Magnue. The following year, the Troop grew fast and the members advanced. A number of winter hikes took place.

Camp Planned

In 1920, camp was planned far in advance, so the attendance was the largest it had ever been 22 in all. They had made a trek-cart in the spring which was quite a help. Nine tents were pitched in a semi-circle near Apple Creek, and everyone hated to go home, especially as the Hedrix were so generous with everything. During the fine autumn a number of hikes were taken, especially by the eight first-class members of the troop It was along about this time of year that the great game of First Aid was invented, so called because of the need for first aid. A merit badge committee was formed and the troop began taking them September 1, 1920 and have been doing so ever since Mr Hanson became scoutmaster in the fall.

A successful week's camp was held in June, 1921 on Apple Creek, although there were less than on the camp of the previous year Squad tents were used, and each patrol had its own tent Mr. MacLeod was with them part time, and a number of tests were passed There was constant activity in the merit badge line during the summer and fall Bruce Wallace became Eagle August 1 and Glen Wallace on October 12 A bird study contest was held during the whole of the year 1921, and 111 birds were reported. About this time, Scoutmaster Hanson started agitation for a cabin, which was immediately taken up by the troop. Money was raised by a supper, and the actual work began. A cabin committee was chosen, and Mr. Ward gave them consent both to build a cabin on his land, and cut down logs for it. Work was started at the end of the year, and progressed rapidly through the winter and spring At the time of its dedication to Rev Jackson in May 1922, it was well towards completion, lacking windows, door, stove and floor.

In the spring, the Scout Eagle was started by three of the troops, and was managed by a staff from their troops.

Two Camps Held

That summer, two camps were held, this time on Heart River, six miles west of Mandan. The first camp was a decided success, 25 merit badges being taken, while 41 in that month made it a banner month. The camp was managed by a camp committee, composed of the scouts themselves. A second camp was held, due to the fact that Alfred Prater and Bruce Wallace were attending the University of Minnesota, which let out after the first camp. Two weeks after the first camp, eight members spent a week on Heart River

In the fall of 1922 it seemed as though most of the members moved away. Four moved to California, two to Grand Forks, one to Texas, one to Driscoll, three to Fargo, and two to New York. Nine of these were merit badge scouts, so it left the troop rather depleted. Mr. Hanson had resigned as the character of his work carried him out of town so much. Mr. S. O. LeBarron, the present scoutmaster, was then chosen, and under him the Troop went along as usual. A successful supper was held, and the cabin debt paid off. The cabin was made habitable, and it was used a number of times during the winter.

Plans for camp, were laid early, and, like the year before, two were held on Heart River. Meetings were held during the summer, and work went right on. A cement floor was put in the cabin, and the whole cabin was re-chinked. In the fall the troop lost four assistant scoutmasters—going to the University of North Dakota and other places. During the past few months the active membership has been increased to 23.

Even though many scouts have left the city, their interest has not. Troop 1A has been formed of the out-of-town members of Troop 1, and practically all of them are registered at Headquarters through Troop 1. At present the membership is 17 active and 3 associate, the latter having moved back to Bismarck. Troop 1A runs a bird study contest and published a paper once a week during the school year. The membership includes Alfred and Arthur Prater, Delmar Schott, California; Arthur Carlson, Washington; Manning Finwall, Gordon Finwall, Fargo; George Russ, Burton Muir, Robert Birdzell, Herbert Zvorist, University of North Dakota; Bayert Jacobson, Huron, South Dakota; William Newcomb, Rochester, New York, Bruce and Glen Wallace, New York City; Mr. Geo. E. Wallace, Willis Frazier, Washington, D. C., Allen Van Fleet, Driscoll, North Dakota; Silas Ebberg and Richard Day, associates, Bismarck.

Troop 1 now has a membership of 23 active scouts, scoutmaster, 12 assistant scoutmasters, 7 associate scouts, besides a number in Troop 1A who are not registered. To date Troop 1 has 288 merit badges, and has graduated 2 Eagle Scouts and 4 Star Scouts.

PRIZES AWARDED BY MODERN DAIRY COMPANY

Essays Submitted Show Importance of Milk Supply

As a result of the Essay Contest conducted in the City High and Grade schools by the Modern Dairy Co., Miss Laura Rupp won the cash prize of $5 for the best essay submitted, Emma Weber, $3 for second prize and Dorothy Birdzell, $2 for the 3rd prize.

In the grades, Brennan Davis won the cash prize of $5 for the best essay, Dennis Welliver, the $3 prize for second and Margeret Register the $2 prize for 3rd best.

It would appear that schools, public health agencies, and the people in general could well afford to emphasize the value of milk and the best methods to be used in the proper care and handling of the same. The public in general is not familiar with the vital importance of this subject. Milk cannot be pasteurized or clarified on the average farm Practically all milk used on the farm must be used in the raw stage. The need of keeping the milk clean and pure is at once recognized. The milk as it comes from the cow is pure, if the cow is healthy If milk is unclean it is due to the lack of care in washing and sterilizing of the milk utensils, and not properly cooling it at once The care and food value of milk products could be stressed more in the schools than it is at this time. Much effort was required on the part of the judges to select the winners of a large number of excellent essays The students taking part in the contest showed considerable knowledge of this very important subject.

We are fortunate here in having milk plants equipped with proper equipment for properly canning the milk.

Value of Milk as a Food.

Food is used for three reasons: 1 Fuel food to provide power and keep us warm 2. Building food for building up the tissues. 3 Regulating food for keeping the body in good working order

Both human and animal babies are given milk to give them a start in life, so milk must contain all the kinds of food the body needs.

Milk has much protein in it. Protein means "the most important." The chief business of protein is for supplying material for growth and repair.

No child wants to be stunted, and that is how he will be unless he has enough protein so he can grow.

Many people think milk is only a drink, but the health books say, that a glass of milk has as much protein as a large egg or one and one-third ounces of meat. It is a pity that more people do not understand how good a food milk is.

Other protein foods, like eggs and meat, have not as much protein as milk so then, milk is cheaper, even if it were fifteen cents a quart. That is much cheaper than eggs or meat.

Milk, too, contains fat, sugar and vitamines

Even in skim milk and in buttermilk most of the protein and sugar and lime of whole milk are found. We are only beginning to know about vitamines. Every boy or girl should use a pint of milk a day while children under six should use a quart. Grown people should have some every day. "Buy milk and save money" is a good slogan for housekeepers.

You can't get on the football team if you are underweight. Your can't win out anywhere if you are not strong. If you want to be a husky—drink milk.

Milk makes might.

Whose all right?

The milk man!

Brennan B. Davis,
Sixth Grade.

Why Milk Should Be Clarified and and Pasteurized.

The question of milk, its value and care is of grave importance to every American family. It has been estimated that one-sixth of the weight of food eaten by the average American family is milk. Milk contains the protein, fat, sugar, mineral matter and vitamins, all of which are necessary for the development of a strong, healthy body.

Milk is often the most valuable food for infants, young children and invalids. But in many cases raw milk contains disease germs and harmful bacteria which causes it to be worse than invalid for the naturally weak.

Pasteurization has been termed the priceless safeguard of public health. But before milk is pasteurized it should be clarified; that is, the minute, invisible particles of foreign matter, whether soluble or insoluble, which cannot be removed by the finest stainer but which, none the less, are harmful and often cause the repugnant taste of milk, must be removed. No matter how carefully the milk has been handled before and after it reaches the dairy the clarification is always necessary to keep the milk clear, clean and pure.

Pasteurization is the common method, now extensively employed, of applying a high temperature to milk so as to destroy as many bacteria as possible without producing undesirable changes in the milk.

Milk should be pasteurized because: first, pasteurization renders milk safe for bacteria and lowers the total bacterial content of milk. The heating process kills many germs and the cooling checks the growth of others.

Secondly, pasteurization delays the souring of milk because it checks the bacteria which cause milk to sour. Under normal conditions pasteurized milk should keep sweet twelve hours longer than raw milk.

Thirdly, pasteurization destroys or renders harmless any disease germs which may be present in the milk. Among the germs which it kills are those of typhoid fever, diptheria and tuberculosis. These germs may be in the milk because is was drawn from diseased cows; because persons connected with the conveyance of the milk carried the germs or the milk may have become contaminated by flies. It has been stated that the chief cause of tuberculosis is milk containing these germs and that from six to seven per cent of milk on the market contains bovine tubercle bacilli.

In the fourth place, pasteurization aids in the removal of weed and feed flavors. Clarification removes a large portion and pasteurization removes much of the disagreeable flavor which remains.

Fifthly, the acidity of milk is slightly reduced by pasteurization.

Bad milk cannot be made perfect but the danger from it's consumption may be lessened. Boiled milk is as safe as pasteurized milk but is more difficult to digest. It has been said that pasteurized milk is as easy to digest as raw milk.

Extreme care should be taken by all who come in contact with milk in any place to keep it clean, cool and covered and in a place free from odors and flavors.

"WHY I BELIEVE IN BOY SCOUTS" IS TOLD BY CITIZENS OF CITY

"Why I believe in the Boy Scout Movement," is the subject of expressions by several Bismarck citizens as given to those in charge of the Boy Scout movement in the city, as a part of the effort to disseminate knowledge concerning the Scout movement during "Boy Scout Week," Expressions follow:

G. H Russ, Jr "Why am I in favor of the Boy Scouts? In answer to your question I am in favor of any movement which teaches a boy the principles of fair play, of truthfulness, that directs his energies along right lines; that appeals to the manly side of a boy, that demands hard work; intelligent study and a knowledge of the practical application of his studies; that conducts his athletics and pastimes along sensibly organized paths and as the Boy Scouts seem to be the leaders in this direction, may the movement grow and prosper."

Mrs. H. F. O'Hare " I believe in the Boy Scout movement because its great aim and object is to make of my boy a better citizen.

"A boy must be kept busy, in fact he will keep busy in a right or wrong way. A boy is a progressive animal and travels in herds or gangs. In order to control or direct his activities in this line, the Boy Scout organization was started. Both work and play that is clean and healthful make up these activities and also are attractive enough to keep the boy interested and happy. Now it is, when a boy is thoroughly enjoying himself; that a conscientious director can bring out the very best that is in him.

"I think it must be with something of the same feeling that "Dad" goes to his lodge or club, that our boy goes to his Scout Council, so in this day of clubs among older people, this organization supplies that demand among boys, a band of boys, affording the companionship of others of his own age and all alike intensely interested in the sports, dear to the hearts of a lad. He gets an outlet for his energy, he gets discipline that makes of him a manly boy and he gets mental training that arouses him to be keen and alert and able to look out for himself.

"I love and admire the Scout Oath, and I think that if he is taught to keep this vow, he can not go far wrong. The first point—duty to God and country instills in him a reverence and patriotism of which the youth of our country cannot get too much. Second point—service to others—brings out in his nature that quality which is truly noble. 3rd point—keeping himself physically, mentally, and morally fit is indeed worth while. In short the Boy Scout movement offers the opportunity to develop the highest and best type of man and I am very proud to have my boy—"A Scout."

Makes Them Self-Reliant

George F. Will—"I have had occasion to observe the Boy Scout movement for several years now and am glad to say that I approve of it thoroughly. It puts the boys through an all-around course and turns out manly, self-reliant young fellows, who can be depended upon.

"Recreation and Education are combined in almost ideal proportions and self-reliance is especially taught. A high standard of morals is inculcated as a basis of requirements in admission and, I believe, it is usually lived up to, and usually well.

"I am only sorry that I cannot see a great many more boys in the Scouts than ordinarily get into it. The better class and those of higher intelligence seem to be primarily the ones that seek it out and benefit from it. There are many who need it worse but who do not seem to have the ambition to get in contact with it. I do not know of any experience during the formative years of a boy's life that can benefit him more, both at the time and during his future life than belonging to the Boy Scouts."

Why He Joined Scouts

Neil Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Cameron, a member of the Scouts, tells, "Why I Joined the Boy Scouts" as follows:

"At the age of ten years I joined the Episcopal "Cub" Scouts or Junior Scouts. We had hikes and passed tests just as the older scouts did. Later our Scouts broke up. I had to practice tests and go hiking by myself. I found that when I was older I could join the senior scouts.

"I had heard that the scouts had gone to camp in the summer time and had a lot of fun, there was a good swimming place there as all boys like to swim, I could hardly wait until I was twelve.

"In the winter of 1923 during Scout Week the Scouts had a drill at the Auditorium where they showed many useful things they did, I then thought it would be nice to join.

"Last summer I was twelve. In September I tried to get in and made it. Oh boy, I was glad I made it. I waited a couple of meetings before I started taking tests. I borrowed a rope and started practicing tying knots to be a Tenderfoot Scout, it was hard but I made it. It did not take much to pass the other tests so I got to be a Tenderfoot.

"Boys get in the Boy Scouts—its great."

SHIFTING OF CROP ACREAGE IN N. D. SHOWN

CORN ACREAGE GAINS

Production in 1923 was 7,000,000 Bushels of Corn Above That of 1922

Acreage shifts between crops in North Dakota were pronounced during 1923, according to the annual report of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates, announced in Grand Forks today by J. G. Diamond, agricultural statistician.

Principal crop productions follow:

Spring wheat	58,660,000 bu.
Corn	28,207,000 bu.
Durum wheat	27,632,000 bu.
Oats	64,924,000 bu.
Barley	23,818,000 bu.
Rye	10,046,000 bu.
Flax	8,424,000 bu.
Potatoes	13,114,000 bu.

The value of corn and flax crops produced in the state was greater than during 1922, but the value of other crops was less, and the total crop value also was less.

Corn yields per acre were higher than any time during the past 10 years. Average yields of flax and tame hay also were somewhat above their 10-year averages and yields of oats, barley and potatoes were somewhat under their 10-year averages.

The 1923 corn crop was 28,207,000 bushels, as compared to the five-year average (1917-21) of 11,956,000 bushels. The crop was seven million bushels above that of 1922. The total farm value of the crop in 1923 was $15,232,000 as compared to $11,368,000 in 1922, and the acre value in 1923 was $18.09, compared to $14.58 the previous year.

Shifts Shown.

The report in part follows:

There was a moderate decrease in the total acreage devoted to the nine principal field crops in North Dakota in 1923, compared with 1922. These nine crops in 1923 accounted for 18,867,000 acres, which based upon census proportions in 1919 is indicated to have been 96 per cent of a theoretical total of 19,653,000 acres in all crops. In 1922 this aggregate total was 19,983,000 acres, with 19,184,000 devoted to the nine crops, while in 1921 the aggregate total was 19,309,000 acres, with 18,537,000 acres devoted to the nine principal crops.

Acreage shifts as between crops were large as has been the case in North Dakota in recent years. Spring wheat acreage was cut 718,000 acres due in part to the late spring and the small amount of 1922 fall-plowing on which the bulk of seeding is done in the eastern third of the state. Part of the decrease in wheat acreage went into the complementary crop, barley, which was increased 353,000 acres. The shift to barley rather than to oats appeared to have been due to barley having maintained a more attractive market price during the preceding season. Rye and flax acreages of which North Dakota has a large proportion of the national total also show strong shifts, rye decreasing 422,000 acres and flax more than doubling its acreage with an increase of 573,000. Unattractive markets for rye following the big 922 crop, and an unfavorable fall for plowing and seeding (1922) were the principal causes for the rye acreage decrease, while the attractive market that has prevailed for flax under tariff protection was the principal cause for the shift in flax acreage. Potato acreage was cut strongly as a result of the big overproduction of this crop in the state in 1922. Corn and tame hay acreages were moderately increased. Oats acreage remained the same as in 1922 and the acreage of lands cut for wild hay was moderately curtailed.

Production Shifts in 1923.

A reduction in the spring wheat crop to 58,660,000 bushels or about 66 million bushels less than the 1922 crop was also cut to less than half of the 1922 production, with oats and barley showing more moderate losses, due to somewhat better yield per acre. The poor yields for the small grain, as has been the case in this state quite often were responsible for shifts in production that were much out of proportion to the acreage changes.

Production of corn in 1923 was about a third larger than the 1922 crop and flax production following closely its acreage shift increased about 4 million bushels, almost doubling the 1922 crop. Hay production was but slightly less than that of 1922, and sufficient for a normal winters need. Potato production was about a third smaller than the 1922 crop but well over the average production for the period 1917-1921.

Shifts in Farm Value.

The pronounced decrease in spring wheat production and a somewhat lower value per bushel accounts for this crop having in 1923 a farm value of less than half of the 1922 valuation of $113,956,000, the 1923 crop being valued at $50,448,000. Rye, oats, barley, potatoes and the hay crops were also valued lower than in 1922. Corn and flax were valued higher than in 1922 but were unable to offset the other losses as is shown by the total value of the nine crops, which was $141,316,000 in 1923 and $214,316,000 in 1922.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Some orator in saluting the Great Emancipator has said: "Son of the cabin; child of the wilderness, we salute you." This salute has been ringing down the generations since the fatal shot was fired that brought low that friend of man whose practice of the Golden Rule in government has written his name high in the history and affections of the American people.

As we view some of the sordid aspects of politics today a fervent prayer goes up for more of the Lincoln spirit in the high seats of government. His wisdom, tenderness for the weaknesses of mankind and courage and firmness of purpose were never more needed in government than today.

Recent disclosures at Washington have shaken faith in the integrity of rulers and given the cynic opportunity to voice the adage that "every man has his price." But those incidents cannot nor should not condemn a whole administration and there sits in the White House today a silent man whose integrity is beyond reproach; whose utterances recall in brevity and high purpose those of Lincoln.

Calvin Coolidge's tribute to Lincoln issued in the form of a proclamation in 1919 rings as true today as when it was uttered.

"In wisdom great," declared Coolidge on that occasion, "but in humility greater, in justice strong, but in compassion stronger, he became a leader of men by being a follower of the truth. He overcame evil with good. His presence filled the Nation. He broke the might of oppression. He restored a race to its birthright. His mortal frame has vanished, but his spirit increases with the increasing years, the richest legacy of the greatest century."

It is well to turn back to the great lessons of Lincoln in the crisis that faces America today. Everywhere in governmental circles is there need for the preachments of this great example of American manhood. His famous speeches will be read from public forums this Lincoln Day fraught with a new meaning, potent with greater lessons and may there be revived as vital forces in public life those ideals for which a nation fought and bled more than fifty years ago.

SECRET SOCIETY

A new international secret society, the New Crusaders, is spreading like wildfire. Already it has a million members in England. Branches are swiftly being established in other countries. Organizers are at work in Canada and expect soon to invade the United States.

While the New Crusaders is a British organization, by origin, it expects to become an international Ku Klux Klan.

The members of the New Crusaders, when attending lodge, wear a white gown with a large red cross on the breast. It's a secret society, but there are no masks.

What it says it seeks is, in a nutshell, the universal brotherhood of man, regardless of races, nationalities and creeds.

The founders started with the idea that international frontiers and their political complications are the basic causes of wars. So the New Crusaders preach the gospel that war can be eliminated only when the world's people forget frontiers and boundaries and, tolerant, co-operate with other nations to check politicians.

All this is an interesting and important attempt to bring the people of the world together in a common understanding. It's a sort of unofficial League of Nations. These crusaders are opposed to violence. They are, however, exerting influence in elections. With a start of a million membership in England alone, they have excellent prospects of becoming a powerful influence in world affairs.

CHANCE IS SMALL

When an unknown writer sends a movie scenario to the producers, there's only one chance in 10,000 of its being accepted.

The Author's League makes this interesting discovery in the law of chance. It found that only four scenarios were accepted out of 42,020 sent to producers.

Maybe it's all for the best, after all. Out of 10,000, we doubt if more than 50 would be worth producing.

Writers' chief problem is over-production. As George Ade put it, too much competition with dead men.

GOAL IS AMBITION

A girl in South America, Miss Harrison, swam across the River Plata where it is over 26 miles wide. She had to swim for 24 hours and more. This is exceptional in everyday life. But thousands of people have swum farther and longer, at sea when their ships went down.

Our possibilities are super-human, provided we have the necessary goal. Goal is Ambition. The higher our ambition, the higher we are apt to get. Life, after all, is a swim across a wide river.

MA'S WORK

A man's work is from sun to sun, but a woman's work is never done. So runs the old saying. However, a lot of ma's work is unnecessary, a duplication of effort. Uncle Sam is busy along this line, making suggestions to farmers' wives. One woman writes: "The new location of my wood-box saves me 400 steps in getting dinner."

In former generations, the majority of women died of overwork.

Fifteen stranded opera singers are working their way to Germany as deck hands. If the whistle breaks, one can have a new job on the boat.

Statistics show there will be 30,000 deaths by accident this year. Help prove that figures lie.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

LEAGUE REAFFIRMS BELIEF IN POLITICAL NOSTRUMS

Delegates to the Nonpartisan League Convention at Bismarck reaffirmed their belief in political nostrums. They are not convinced as yet that State Socialism will not work.

For instance, they indorsed the Fedje Labor Lien Bill, which presumes to be a measure for the benefit of the farmer, but which would destroy the crop as a credit asset in North Dakota.

They declared, without any qualification whatever, for state-owned mills, elevators, warehouses, coal mines, and briquetting plants. Instead of giving a full and fair trial to the stateowned institutions which the State now has, they would put the State Government further into business, notwithstanding the experience gained through the wreckage of the Homebuilders Association, the Drake Mill and the Werner Creamery.

They demand:

The revision of the income tax law with higher rates on the higher incomes.

Such revision would only add to the burden of taxation now falling upon the man in the lower brackets who would pay the tax bill in indirect taxes.

That the Bank of North Dakota be made to function as was originally intended.

Possibly referring to the way it functioned under the Nonpartisan League regime which gave the State some 200 real estate mortgages on which neither principal nor interest has been paid, and which the bank officials believe never will be paid.

That we advocate the immediate stabilization of the prices of farm products by the Federal Government.

Pricefixing.

A program, similar to this, had a great appeal some eight years ago. Then the Socialistic doctrines were disguised under a new name. But since then the people have had experience and repudiated at the polls those who were the chief medicine men in the heyday of the League. It was found that Nonpartisanism meant Socialism, and that the attempt to carry out the original Nonpartisan program saddled onto the State a bonded indebtedness of approximately $17,000,000 and caused taxes to be tripled.

It is not probable that the majority of the people of North Dakota can be inveigled into indorsing any program for further experimentation which would mean the incurring of further obligations. The State today needs to forget theories and continue to build on a policy of sound economics which alone makes for permanency and stability. — Fargo Forum.

THE FAMILY LIEN BILL

All kinds of arguments for the Fedje bill are being broadcasted by League newspapers on a wave length of 400 meters or more. The announcer in most instances is no other than Fedje, himself.

The bill in question provides that a farmer and all of his children over the age of 16 have the right to file a lien for the labor of sowing, caring for and harvesting their own crops. Such a law smacks of special legislation in that the stock farmer will be denied the privilege of filing a lien for the care of the increase of his stock, for instance.

The law will be referred to the voters at the March primaries. It is a law that concerns the farmer wholly; others—not even capital—are concerning themselves about it. Therefore there is no organized opposition against the passage of the bill.

It may not have occurred to many of those now in favor of the bill, however, that if it becomes law the farmer has forfeited his right to mortgage his crop. If a farmer, for instance, had the best crop he ever raised, delayed arranging for twine until harvest time and then makes the discovery that he can get twine only for cash, such a law might be the worst that could happen. The family lien law being in force he could not mortgage his crop and he has no other security. His grain would be apt to lodge or shell out before he could harvest it without twine. Furthermore he might find it convenient in case of sickness or some other misfortune in the family to have a crop to mortgage. There are many other things for which it would be convenient to mortgage a crop, such as seed grain, milk cows, hogs, etc.—Watford City (N. D.) Guide.

CUTTING EXPENSES

The McLaughlin Messenger doubts very much if the Agricultural Extension Service is worth what it costs the taxpayers of South Dakota. The service has speakers on most every conceivable subject traveling over the state at big expense telling the public how to do this and that thing. One of the latest frills is a woman who is lecturing on the use of empty flour sacks. Every woman in McLaughlin and Corson county undoubtedly knows what use can be made of bleached flour sacks. We don't blame the good lady, but the head of the economics department who assigned her to this task must be hard up for a subject to work on. When a lot of these fool state expenditures are curtailed there will be relief from high taxes and not before.—Elgin (N. D. News.

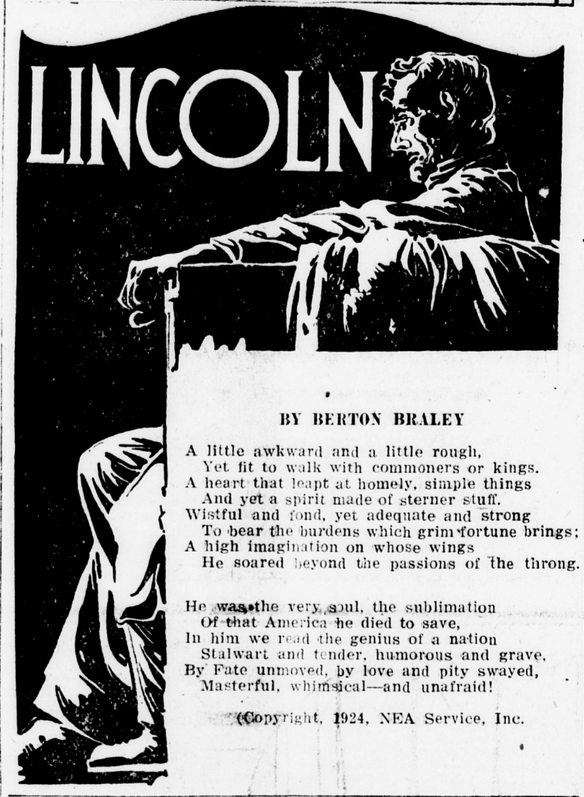
HIS SPIRIT LIVES ON!



BY BERTON BRALEY

A little awkward and a little rough,
Yet fit to walk with commoners or kings.
A heart that leapt at homely, simple things
And yet a spirit made of sterner stuff.
Wistful and fond, yet adequate and strong
To bear the burdens which grim fortune brings;
A high imagination on whose wings
He soared beyond the passions of the throng.

He was the very soul, the sublimation
Of that America he died to save,
In him we read the genius of a nation
Stalwart and tender, humorous and grave.
By Fate unmoved, by love and pity swayed,
Masterful, whimsical—and unafraid!

MAN'S WORRY IS USELESS

MISSING WIFE FOUND BY POLICE

Why worry? Every day something happens to show how useles weeping over sloshed milk can be.

Take the case of a man in New York. His wife was missing. He had no idea where she was for three years. What would you do under such circumstances? Why, you would worry. That's what this man did.

Cops searched three years, finally finding her in Chicago safely married to a plumber. Now doesn't that show the futility of worry?

EDITORIAL.

A Cincinnati dental student has been arrested. Cops say he killed a man and then robbed him. This young fellow is learning to be a dentist fast. Of course, he carried both crimes too far. That is the trouble with young men, they become too enthusiastic over their work. A capable dentist should only nearly kill a man before robbing him.

BIRTHS.

The stork is voiceless, but a man with triplets tells us the bird is dumb in more ways than one.

SPORTS.

Tex Rickard says the longest fight on record lasted two days, and the shortest one four seconds. He is wrong in both cases. The longest fight we ever heard of is Bryan's fight to become president. This has lasted for years and years. Perhaps the shortest fight was one time when an auto driver thought he could whip a traffic cop.

JAIL NEWS.

SOCIETY.

Home often is merely a place where you get your mail. That is where a Chicago man slipped up. He didn't even come home for his mail, so his wife opened it for him. Now he is paying alimony.

MARRIAGES.

Cafe cashier chased a robber with a broom. She is single so we don't know how she got her training.

CABLEGRAM FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO MRS. JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Arrived London safely. Alice very glad to see us. Dad feeling much better. Love. MOTHER.

Night letter from Sydney Carton to John Alden Prescott:

P. P. making a series of personal appearances across the continent. Will probably be in your city. Better get Leslie out of the town when you know for sure when she is coming. Think she means business. Young man by name of Summers traveling with her as business manager. I shall not be back for three months. Keep me advised.

SYD.

Telephone conversation between Leslie Prescott and Ruth Ellington:

"I would like to speak to Mrs. Ellington."

"This is she."

"Hello, Ruth, I didn't recognize your voice."

"Is that you, Leslie, when did you get back?"

"Last night."

"I guess you think I am a big fool, Leslie."

"Perhaps you did the same thing I would have done myself, but anyway, you certainly have kicked up a mess. If you had to put that money in my safe, why did you wait until so late in the afternoon?"

"Well, you see, Leslie, I was awfully busy until just before closing and I thought I could get away before Jack came in. Was he awfully angry?"

"Very. He told me never to speak to you again. He seems to think Harry sent you that money to pay on his debts and that you were putting it to your own use."

"Can you beat that, Leslie? To think that Jack of all men could expect Harry Ellington, who betrayed him in every way possible, could ever send him back a cent of the money he stole from him. He is mighty quick to say 'the woman did it'."

"Don't feel hurt, Ruth. I wouldn't have told it to you at all but we have got to reach some plan of action in the matter."

"What have you already told Jack, Leslie?"

"I declined to tell him anything."

"Perhaps you had better tell him the truth."

"Think a minute and you will find that I cannot do that. I will try and see you tomorrow, however. In the meantime I have had a number of packages sent to your shop. I bought some lovely things for you to sell."

"Are you sending the money back to Struble & Struble today?"

"My dear girl, I can't do it. Jack has it with him."

"Good Lord, what are you going to do, Leslie?"

"Really I don't know. I am relying on you to think up some plan between now and tomorrow."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Instead of a long riddle today," announced the Riddle Lady, "I am going to ask several short ones. Now see who can be first to guess this one:

"Sometimes they're silver, sometimes gold,
And like those things, are hard to hold,
The gold ones oft are kept in cases,
Made out of glass like precious vases.

"They keep no stores, and yet they've scales,
They have no feet, but all have tails,
They come in schools but have no books,
This is their motto, 'Beware of hooks!'"

"I know what it is," sang out Simple Simon. And at exactly the same instant didn't Tommy Tittlemouse say it, too.

"What?" said the Riddle Lady.

"Fish!" replied both Simon and Tommy promptly. No wonder they could guess so easily. Simon fishing the silly way he did, in his mother's scrubbing pail, and Tommy Tittlemouse, who lived in the little house, fishing forever in other men's ditches!

"That's right," said the Riddle Lady. "The prize is a new fishing line for each of you. Now listen, everybody. What is this?

"It wears no gown, but ne'er the less,
It travels not without address,
It cannot walk, it cannot tramp,
Yet never moves without a stamp."

Now, of course, my dears, this riddle sounds as easy as pie for you, but nobody knew what it was but the Twins. They knew for many reasons. First, because they had worked in the Fairyland Postoffice helping Mister Stamps. But anyway—did you ever, ever, ever hear of anyone in Mother Goose Land writing a letter?

"Yes, that's what it was, a letter, and Nancy guessed it and got a nice box of writing paper of her own with pictures on it. The Mother Goose people thought it very curious.

"Now then, for the third riddle," said the Riddle Lady. "Listen carefully:

"It lives in a cellar,
But never leaves the kitchen,
It's one of the seasons,
Yet never sees the sky,
Cap is full of holes,
But never puts a stitch in,
Must have its reasons!
Can you tell me why?"

Well, sir! Everybody nearly guessed his head off. But not a person could get in. Not even Nancy and Nick, and usually they could guess anything.

"Perhaps the kitchen is in the cellar. Some are," said the Crooked Man, whose front door went in the back way.

"No!" the Riddle Lady shook her head. "Not this cellar."

"And a season just cannot be in the house!" declared the Old-Woman-Who-Lived-Under-the-Hill.

"This one can," smiled the Riddle Lady. "There are other seasons besides summer and winter and spring and fall. Perhaps I should have said 'The four seasonings' instead."

That let the cat out of the bag!

"Salt!" shouted everybody at once.

"That's right," laughed the Riddle Lady. "But there is no prize. You were all too slow!"

XXVI (continued)

Elinor Goodrich. Mabel Lawrence. Polly Vane. Isabel Ruyler. Ellen de Lacey. Louise Prevost. She had been so intimate with all of them, not only in the schoolroom but when they were all in Society together. Now only her somewhat cynical sense of anticipation mitigated utter boredom at the thought of meeting them again. Of the other six she had still vaguer memories, although she recalled having heard that the beauty of her own last season, Lily Armstrong, had married one of the Tracys. She also was to be at the luncheon.

What on earth was she to talk to them about at the table? She could hardly tell them the story they expected before the servants. That would be for the later hour in the drawing-room—or would it be in that absurd old room of Jane's upstairs?

She recalled Elinor Tracy (Goodrich) and her enthusiastic admiration, which she had accepted as a matter-of-course, and given little beyond amiable tolerance in return. As she had told Clavering, she was not a woman's woman. She hoped Nelly had outgrown "gush." For some ten years after her marriage she had met her from time to time abroad, but she had not seen her for so long that she doubted if she would recognize her if they passed on the street. The only one of her old friends for whom she retained either interest or affection was Jane Oglethorpe, who, ten years older than herself, with a commanding personality unfolding rapidly at the dawn of their intimacy, had attracted deeply but subtly her own untried force of character and ruthless will. Embarrassment over, she had enjoyed their long hour together, and was glad to renew their intimacy, to find that her old friend's warm affection had lost nothing with years. And she had found her more interesting than in her youth.

She sighed a little as she looked back on her long hours of almost unbroken solitude in this old house. She had been comparatively happy at first—a blessed interval of rest and peace in this marvelously wealthy and prosperous city where the poor were kept out of sight, at least, where all the men were whole and where one never saw a gaunt woman's appealing eyes, or emaciated ragged children. Those untroubled hours had fled for ever and astonishment, impotent fury, and dire mental conflict had followed, but nevertheless she had dreamed—dreamed—and been glad of her freedom from social and all other duties. Now, probably these women and many more would swarm here.

Her mouth twisted as her maid helped her into the soft gray coat trimmed with blue fox. Ordeal! That would come on Saturday night. No wonder she was merely amused and totally indifferent today!

When she arrived at the house in Gramercy Park, purposely late, to give her entrance the effect Mrs. Oglethorpe had commanded, she heard an excited buzz of voices in the drawing-room as she was being relieved of her wrap. As she entered it ceased abruptly and she heard several hardly perceptible gasps. But the pause, before they all crowded about her, was too brief to be noticeable, and they shook her hand heartily or kissed her warmly. If their eyes were perhaps too studiously expressionless, their words and manner might have been those of old friends welcoming back one who had been long absent and nothing more. Conflicting emotions, born of undying femininity, were not evident for the moment. Mrs. Goodrich cried out at once how wonderfully well she looked, Mrs. Lawrence asked if she had stopped in Paris for her clothes, and Mrs. Vane if she found New York much changed. Nothing could have gone off better.

Mrs. Oglethorpe, in old-pile black velvet as usual, with a front and high-boned collar of yellow rose-point lace, stood in the background watching the comedy with a frank sardonic grin. If her guests had been faithless to the traditions in which they had been bred, she would have felt angry and ashamed, but the automatic manner in which they rose to the occasion and took the blow standing (Mrs. Oglethorpe often indulged in the vernacular of her son, her Janet, and her Lee) made her rock with silent mirth. She knew exactly how they felt!

They were a fine-looking set of women and handsomely dressed, but they indisputably belonged to the old regime, and even Mrs. Tracy, the youngest of them, had something of what Mary Zattiany called that built-up look. They were fashionable but not smart. They carried themselves with a certain conscious rigidity and aloofness which even their daughters had abandoned and was a source of disrespectful amusement to their iniquitous granddaughters. Although Mrs. Goodrich, Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Tracy were more up to date in their general appearance, wearing slightly larger hats and fewer feathers, with narrow dog collars instead of whaleboned net, they were as disdainful as the others of every art that aims to preserve something of the effect of youth; although they were spickingly groomed. They accepted life as it was, and they had accepted it at every successive stage, serene in the knowledge that in this as in other things they were above the necessity of compromise and subterfuge. They were the fixed quantities in a world of shifting values.

In age they ranged from fifty-six to sixty-two, with the exception of Mrs. Tracy, who was a mere fifty-two. A few were stout, the others bony and gaunt. Their hair was white or gray. Only Mrs. Tracy, with her fresh complexion and soft brown hair, her plump little figure encased in modern corsets, had got on the blind side of nature, as Mrs. Oglethorpe had told Mary. The others were frankly elderly women, but of great dignity and distinction, some charm, and considerable honesty and simplicity. And their loyalty never failed them.

The luncheon was by no means easy and informal. Mary, by racking her memory, recalled the first names of most of them and never in all her varied life had she been more sweetly amiable, made so determined an effort to please. She might not care what they thought of her, but she was sorry for them, they had behaved very decently, and for Jane Oglethorpe's sake alone the occasion must be a success. She was ably seconded by Mrs. Goodrich, who stared at her in wide-eyed admiration and rattled off the gossip of New York, and by Mrs. Tracy, who had an insatiable interest in diplomatic society. When she had satisfied the latter's curiosity she led the conversation by a straight path to the sufferings of the children of Austria and begged them to join her in forming a relief committee. They received this philanthropic suggestion with no apparent fervor, but it served to relieve the stiffness and tension until they retired to the drawing-room for coffee.

They stood about for a few moments, Mary looking up at the portrait of Jane Oglethorpe in her flaming youth. But the hostess ordered them all to sit down and exclaimed peremptorily: "Now, Mary, tell them all about it or I'll have a lot of fainting, hysterical women on my hands. We're still human if we are old and ugly. Go to it, as Janet would say. I believe you have met that estimable exponent of the later New York manner. You are no more extraordinary yourself than some of the changes here at home, but you're more picturesque, and that's harder to swallow. Put them out of their misery."

The ladies smiled or frowned, according to what humor the Almighty, niggardly in his bestowal of humor, had allotted them. At all events they were used to "Jane." Mrs. Goodrich, who had led Mary to a sofa and seated herself beside her, took her hand and pressed it affectionately, as if she were encouraging her on the way to the operating room. "Yes, tell us the story, darling. It is all too wonderful!"

"Do you really mean that you have never heard of this treatment?" asked Madame Zattiany, who knew quite well that they had not. "Few things are better known in Europe."

"We have never heard of it," said Mrs. Vane austerely. "We were totally unprepared."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Some orator in saluting the Great Emancipator has said; "Son of the cabin; child of the wilderness, we salute you." This salute has been ringing down the generations since the fatal shot was fired that brought low that friend of man whose practice of the Golden Rule in government has written his name high in the history and affections of the American people.

As we view some of the sordid aspects of politics today a fervent prayer goes up for more of the Lincoln spirit in the high seats of government. His wisdom, tenderness for the weaknesses of mankind and courage and firmness of purpose were never more needed in government than today.

Recent disclosures at Washington have shaken faith in the integrity of rulers and given the cynic opportunity to voice the adage that "every man has his price." But those incidents cannot nor should not condemn a whole administration and there sits in the White House today a silent man whose integrity is beyond reproach; whose utterances recall in brevity and high purpose those of Lincoln.

Calvin Coolidge's tribute to Lincoln issued in the form of a proclamation in 1919 rings as true today as when it was uttered.

"In wisdom great," declared Coolidge on that occasion, "but in humility greater, in justice strong, but in compassion stronger, he became a leader of men by being a follower of the truth. He overcame evil with good. His presence filled the Nation. He broke the might of oppression. He restored a race to its birthright. His mortal frame has vanished, but his spirit increases with the increasing years, the richest legacy of the greatest century."

It is well to turn back to the great lessons of Lincoln in the crisis that faces America today. Everywhere in governmental circles is there need for the preachments of this great example of American manhood. His famous speeches will be read from public forums this Lincoln Day fraught with a new meaning, potent with greater lessons and may there be revived as vital forces in public life those ideals for which a nation fought and bled more than fifty years ago.

SECRET SOCIETY

A new international secret society, the New Crusaders, is spreading like wildfire. Already it has a million members in England. Branches are swiftly being established in other countries. Organizers are at work in Canada and expect soon to invade the United States.

While the New Crusaders is a British organization, by origin, it expects to become an international Ku Klux Klan.

The members of the New Crusaders, when attending lodge, wear a white gown with a large red cross on the breast. It's a secret society, but there are no masks.

What it says it seeks is, in a nutshell, the universal brotherhood of man, regardless of races, nationalities and creeds.

The founders started with the idea that international frontiers and their political complications are the basic causes of wars. So the New Crusaders preach the gospel that war can be eliminated only when the world's people forget frontiers and boundaries and, tolerant, co-operate with other nations to check politicians.

All this is an interesting and important attempt to bring the people of the world together in a common understanding. It's a sort of unofficial League of Nations. These crusaders are opposed to violence. They are, however, exerting influence in elections. With a start of a million membership in England alone, they have excellent prospects of becoming a powerful influence in world affairs.

CHANCE IS SMALL

When an unknown writer sends a movie scenario to the producers, there's only one chance in 10,000 of its being accepted.

The Author's League makes this interesting discovery in the law of chance. It found that only four scenarios were accepted out of 42,020 sent to producers.

Maybe it's all for the best, after all. Out of 10,000, we doubt if more than 50 would be worth producing.

Writers' chief problem is over-production. As George Ade put it, too much competition with dead men.

GOAL IS AMBITION

A girl in South America, Miss Harrison, swam across the River Plata where it is over 26 miles wide. She had to swim for 24 hours and more. This is exceptional in everyday life. But thousands of people have swum farther and longer, at sea when their ships went down.

Our possibilities are super-human, provided we have the necessary goal. Goal is Ambition. The higher our ambition, the higher we are apt to get. Life, after all, is a swim across a wide river.

MA'S WORK

A man's work is from sun to sun, but a woman's work is never done. So runs the old saying. However, a lot of ma's work is unnecessary, a duplication of effort. Uncle Sam is busy along this line, making suggestions to farmers' wives. One woman writes: "The new location of my wood-box saves me 400 steps in getting dinner."

In former generations, the majority of women died of overwork.

Fifteen stranded opera singers are working their way to Germany as deck hands. If the whistle breaks, one can have a new job on the boat.

Statistics show there will be 30,000 deaths by accident this year. Help prove that figures lie.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues, which are being discussed in the press of the day.

LEAGUE REAFFIRMS BELIEF IN POLITICAL NOSTRUMS

Delegates to the Nonpartisan League Convention at Bismarck reaffirmed their belief in political nostrums. They are not convinced as yet that State Socialism will not work.

For instance, they indorsed the Fedje Labor Lien Bill, which presumes to be a measure for the benefit of the farmer, but which would destroy the crop as a credit asset in North Dakota.

They declared, without any qualification whatever, for state-owned mills, elevators, warehouses, coal mines, and briquetting plants. Instead of giving a full and fair trial to the stateowned institutions which the State now has, they would put the State Government further into business, notwithstanding the experience gained through the wreckage of the Homebuilders Association, the Drake Mill and the Werner Creamery.

They demand:

The revision of the income tax law with higher rates on the higher incomes.

Such revision would only add to the burden of taxation now falling upon the man in the lower brackets who would pay the tax bill in indirect taxes.

That the Bank of North Dakota be made to function as was originally intended.

Possibly referring to the way it functioned under the Nonpartisan League regime which gave the State some 200 real estate mortgages on which neither principal nor interest has been paid, and which the bank officials believe never will be paid.

That we advocate the immediate stabilization of the prices of farm products by the Federal Government.

Pricefixing.

A program, similar to this, had a great appeal some eight years ago. Then the Socialistic doctrines were disguised under a new name. But since then the people have had experience and repudiated at the polls those who were the chief medicine men in the heyday of the League. It was found that Nonpartisanism meant Socialism, and that the attempt to carry out the original Nonpartisan program saddled onto the State a bonded indebtedness of approximately $17,000,000 and caused taxes to be tripled.

It is not probable that the majority of the people of North Dakota can be inveigled into indorsing any program for further experimentation which would mean the incurring of further obligations. The State today needs to forget theories and continue to build on a policy of sound economics which alone makes for permanency and stability. — Fargo Forum.

THE FAMILY LIEN BILL

All kinds of arguments for the Fedje bill are being broadcasted by League newspapers on a wave length of 400 meters or more. The announcer in most instances is no other than Fedje, himself.

The bill in question provides that a farmer and all of his children over the age of 16 have the right to file a lien for the labor of sowing, caring for and harvesting their own crops. Such a law smacks of special legislation in that the stock farmer will be denied the privilege of filing a lien for the care of the increase of his stock, for instance.

The law will be referred to the voters at the March primaries. It is a law that concerns the farmer wholly; others—not even capital—are concerning themselves about it. Therefore there is no organized opposition against the passage of the bill.

It may not have occurred to some of those now in favor of the bill, however, that if it becomes law the farmer has forfeited his right to mortgage his crop. If a farmer, for instance, had the best crop he ever raised, delayed arranging for twine until harvest time and then makes the discovery that he can get twine only for cash, such a law might be the worst that could happen. The family lien law being in force he could not mortgage his crop and he has no other security. His grain would be apt to lodge or shell out before he could harvest it without twine. Furthermore he might find it convenient in case of sickness or some other misfortune in the family to have a crop to mortgage. There are many other things for which it would be convenient to mortgage a crop, such as seed grain, milk cows, hogs, etc.—Watford City (N. D.) Guide.

CUTTING EXPENSES

The McLaughlin Messenger doubts very much if the Agricultural Extension Service is worth what it costs the taxpayers of South Dakota. The service has speakers on most every conceivable subject traveling over the state at big expense telling the public how to do this and that thing. One of the latest frills is a woman who is lecturing on the use of empty flour sacks. Every woman in McLaughlin and Corson county undoubtedly knows what use can be made of bleached flour sacks. We don't blame the good lady, but the head of the economics department who assigned her to this task must be hard up for a subject to work on. When a lot of these fool state expenditures are curtailed there will be relief from high taxes and not before.—Elgin (N. D. News.

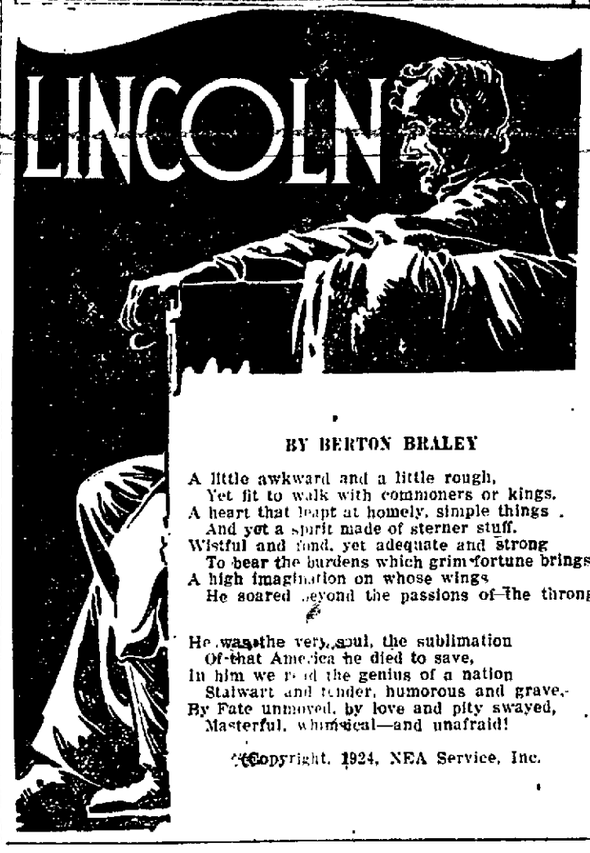
HIS SPIRIT LIVES ON!



BY BERTON BRALEY

A little awkward and a little rough,
Yet fit to walk with commoners or kings.
A heart that leapt at homely, simple things
And yet a spirit made of sterner stuff.
Wistful and fond, yet adequate and strong
To bear the burdens which grim fortune brings;
A high imagination on whose wings
He soared beyond the passions of the throng.

He was the very soul, the sublimation
Of that America he died to save,
In him we find the genius of a nation
Stalwart and tender, humorous and grave,
By Fate unmoved, by love and pity swayed,
Masterful, whimsical—and unafraid!

MISSING WIFE FOUND BY POLICE

Why worry? Every day something happens to show how useless weeping over slosh d milk can be.

Take the case of a man in New York. His wife was missing. He had no idea where she was for three years. What would you do under such circumstances? Why, you would worry. That's what this man did.

Cops searched three years, finally finding her in Chicago safely married to a plumber. Now doesn't that show the futility of worry?

EDITORIAL.

A Cincinnati dental student has been arrested. Cops say he killed a man and then robbed him. This young fellow is learning to be a dentist fast. Of course, he carried both crimes too far. That is the trouble with young men, they become too enthusiastic over their work. A capable dentist should only nearly kill a man before robbing him.

BIRTHS.

The stork is careless, but a man with triplets tells us the bird is dumb in more ways than one.

SPORTS.

Tex Rickard says the longest fight on record lasted two days, and the shortest one four seconds. He is wrong in both cases. The longest fight we ever heard of is Bryan's fight to become president. This has lasted for years and years. Perhaps the shortest fight was one time when an auto driver thought he could whip a traffic cop.

JAIL NEWS.

Pickpocket robbed a girl in a Kentucky sheriff's office. Thirty cops present escaped without loss.

CONTEST.

More Entries in Effort to Find Good Words.

Dan Dobb's efforts to find the six most important words in the English language are bringing results. The prizes will be awarded soon.

New entries are: "The stuff was water, not bootleg." "Here, you can use my handkerchief." "So I stopped, looked and listened." "The seed catalog did not lie." "Yes, we have a lower berth." "I love you, I love you." "I hate you, I hate you," and "Spring isn't so far away now."

SOCIETY.

Home often is merely a place where you get your mail. That is where a Chicago man slipped up. He didn't even come home for his mail, so his wife opened it for him. Now he is paying alimony.

MARRIAGES.

Cafe cashier chased a robber with a broom. She is single so we don't know how she got her training.

POLITICS.

Last presidential election we jumped from one party to another. It may mean nothing, but this is leap year.

DAN DOBB SAYS

One nice thing about your wife being missing is you can find a place at home to hang your clothes.

SCHOOL NEWS.

SPRING NOTE.

AUTO NOTES.

CABLEGRAM FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO MRS. JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Arrived London safely. Alice very glad to see us. Dad feeling much better. Love. MOTHER.

Night letter from Sydney Carton to John Alden Prescott:

P. P. making a series of personal appearances across the continent. Will probably be in your city. Better get Leslie out of the town when you know for sure when she is coming. Think she means business. Young man by name of Summers traveling with her as business manager. I shall be back for three months. Keep me advised.

SYD.

Telephone conversation between Leslie Prescott and Ruth Ellington:

"I would like to speak to Mrs. Ellington."

"This is she."

"Hello, Ruth, I didn't recognize your voice."

"Is that you, Leslie, when did you get back?"

"Last night."

"I guess you think I am a big fool, Leslie."

"Perhaps you did the same thing I would have done myself, but anyway, you certainly have kicked up a mess. If you had to put that money in my safe, why did you wait until so late in the afternoon?"

"Well, you see, Leslie, I was awfully busy until just before closing and I thought I could get away before Jack came in. Was he awfully angry?"

"Very. He told me never to speak to you again. He seems to think Harry owes you that money to pay on his debts and that you were putting it to your own use."

"Can you beat that, Leslie? To think that Jack of all men could expect Harry Ellington, who betrayed him in every way possible, could ever send him back a cent of the money he stole from him. He is mighty quick to say the woman did it."

"Don't feel hurt, Ruth. I wouldn't have told it to you at all but we have got to reach some plan of action in the matter."

"What have you already told Jack, Leslie?"

"I declined to tell him anything."

"Perhaps you had better tell him the truth."

"Think a minute and you will find that I cannot do that. I will try and see you tomorrow, however. In the meantime I have had a number of packages sent to your shop. I bought some lovely things for you to sell."

"Are you sending the money back to Struble & Struble today?"

"My dear girl, I can't do it. Jack has it with him."

"Good Lord, what are you going to do, Leslie?"

"Really I don't know. I am relying on you to think up some plan, between now and tomorrow."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Instead of a long riddle today," announced the Riddle Lady, "I am going to ask several short ones. Now see who can be first to guess this one:

"Sometimes they're silver, sometimes gold,
And like those things, are hard to hold,
The gold ones oft are kept in cases,
Made out of glass like precious vases.

"They keep no stores, and yet they've scales,
They have no feet, but all have tails,
They come in schools but have no books,
This is their motto, 'Beware of hooks!'"

"I know what it is," sang out Simple Simon. And at exactly the same instant didn't Tommy Tittlemouse say it, too.

"What?" said the Riddle Lady.

"Fish!" replied both Simon and Tommy promptly. No wonder they could guess so easily. Simon fishing the silly way he did, in his mother's scrubbing pail, and Tommy Tittlemouse, who lived in the little house, fishing forever in other men's ditches!

"That's right," said the Riddle Lady. "The prize is a new fishing line for each of you. Now listen, everybody. What is this?

"It wears no gown, but ne'er the less,
It travels not without address,
It cannot walk, it cannot tramp,
Yet never moves without a stamp."

Now, of course, my dears, this riddle sounds as easy as pie for you, but nobody knew what it was but the Twins. They knew for many reasons. First, because they had worked in the Fairyland Postoffice helping Mister Stamps. But anyway—did you ever, ever, ever hear of anyone in Mother Goose Land writing a letter?

"Yes, that's what it was, a letter, and Nancy guessed it and got a nice box of writing paper of her own with pictures on it. The Mother Goose people thought it very curious.

"Now then, for the third riddle," said the Riddle Lady. "Listen carefully:

"It lives in a cellar,
But never leaves the kitchen,
It's one of the seasons,
Yet never sees the sky,
Cap is full of holes,
But never puts a stitch in,
Must have its reasons!
Can you tell me why?"

Well, sir! Everybody nearly guessed his head off. But not a person could get in. Not even Nancy and Nick, and usually they could guess anything.

"Perhaps the kitchen is in the cellar. Some are," said the Crooked Man, whose front door went in the back way.

"No!" the Riddle Lady shook her head. "Not this cellar."

"And a season just cannot be in the house!" declared the Old-Woman-Who-Lived-Under-the-Hill.

"This one can," smiled the Riddle Lady. "There are other seasons besides summer and winter and spring and fall. Perhaps I should have said 'The four seasonings' instead."

That set the cat out of the bag.

"Salt!" shouted everybody at once.

XXVI (continued)

Elinor Goodrich. Mabel Lawrence. Polly Vane. Isabel Ruyler. Ellen de Lacey. Louise Prevost. She had been so intimate with all of them, not only in the schoolroom but when they were all in Society together. Now only her somewhat cynical sense of anticipation mitigated utter boredom at the thought of meeting them again. Of the other six she had still vaguer memories, although she recalled having heard that the beauty of her own last season, Lily Armstrong, had married one of the Tracys. She also was to be at the luncheon.

What on earth was she to talk to them about at the table? She could hardly tell them the story they expected before the servants. That would be for the later hour in the drawing-room—or would it be in that absurd old room of Jane's upstairs?

She recalled Elinor Tracy (Goodrich) and her enthusiastic admiration, which she had accepted as a matter-of-course, and given little beyond amiable tolerance in return. As she had told Clavering, she was not a woman's woman. She hoped Nolly had outgrown "gush." For some ten years after her marriage she had met her from time to time abroad, but she had not seen her for so long that she doubted if she would recognize her if they passed on the street. The only one of her old friends for whom she retained either interest or affection was Jane Oglethorpe, who, ten years older than herself, with a commanding personality unfolding rapidly at the dawn of their intimacy, had attracted deeply but subtly her own untried force of character and ruthless will. Embarrassment over, she had enjoyed their long hour together, and was glad to renew their intimacy, to find that her old friend's warm affection had lost nothing with years. And she had found her more interesting than in her youth.

She sighed a little as she looked back on her long hours of almost unbroken solitude in this old house. She had been comparatively happy at first—a blessed interval of rest and peace in this marvelously wealthy and prosperous city where the poor were kept out of sight, at least, where all the men were whole and where one never saw a gaunt woman's appealing eyes, or emaciated ragged children. Those untroubled hours had fled for ever and astonishment, impotent fury, and dire mental conflict had followed, but nevertheless she had dreamed—dreamed—and been glad of her freedom from social and all other duties. Now, probably these women and many more would swarm here.

Her mouth twisted as her maid helped her into the soft gray coat trimmed with blue fox. Ordeal! That would come on Saturday night. No wonder she was merely amused and totally indifferent today!

When she arrived at the house in Gramercy Park, purposely late, to give her entrance the effect Mrs. Oglethorpe had commanded, she heard an excited buzz of voices in the drawing-room as she was being relieved of her wrap. As she entered it ceased abruptly and she heard several hardly perceptible gasps. But the pause, before they all crowded about her, was too brief to be noticeable, and they shook her hand heartily or kissed her warmly. If their eyes were perhaps too studiously expressionless, their words and manner might have been those of old friends welcoming back one who had been long absent and nothing more. Conflicting emotions, born of undying femininity, were not evident for the moment. Mrs. Goodrich cried out at once how wonderfully well she looked, Mrs. Lawrence asked if she had stopped in Paris for her clothes, and Mrs. Vane if she found New York much changed. Nothing could have gone off better.

Mrs. Oglethorpe, in old-pile black velvet as usual, with a front and high-boned collar of yellow rose-point lace, stood in the background watching the comedy with a frank sardonic grin. If her guests had been faithless to the traditions in which they had been bred, she would have felt angry and ashamed, but the automatic manner in which they rose to the occasion and took the blow standing (Mrs. Oglethorpe often indulged in the vernacular of her son, her Janet, and her Lee) made her rock with silent mirth. She knew exactly how they felt!

They were a fine-looking set of women and handsomely dressed, but they indisputably belonged to the old regime, and even Mrs. Tracy, the youngest of them, had something of what Mary Zattiany called that built-up look. They were fashionable but not smart. They carried themselves with a certain conscious rigidity and aloofness which even their daughters had abandoned and was a source of disrespectful amusement to their iniquitous granddaughters. Although Mrs. Goodrich, Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Tracy were more up to date in their general appearance, wearing slightly larger hats and fewer feathers, with narrow dog collars instead of whalebone net, they were as disdainful as the others of every art that aims to preserve something of the effect of youth; although they were spickingly groomed. They accepted life as it was, and they had accepted it at every successive stage, serene in the knowledge that in this as in other things they were above the necessity of compromise and subterfuge. They were the fixed quantities in a world of shifting values.

In age they ranged from fifty-six to sixty-two, with the exception of Mrs. Tracy, who was a mere fifty-two. A few were stout, the others bony and gaunt. Their hair was white or gray. Only Mrs. Tracy, with her fresh complexion and soft brown hair, her plump little figure encased in modern corsets, had got on the blind side of nature, as Mrs. Oglethorpe had told Mary. The others were frankly elderly women, but of great dignity and distinction, some charm, and considerable honesty and simplicity. And their loyalty never failed them.

The luncheon was by no means easy and informal. Mary, by racking her memory, recalled the first names of most of them and never in all her varied life had she been more sweetly amiable, made so determined an effort to please. She might not care what they thought of her, but she was sorry for them, they had behaved very decently, and for Jane Oglethorpe's sake alone the occasion must be a success. She was ably seconded by Mrs. Goodrich, who stared at her in wide-eyed admiration and rattled off the gossip of New York, and by Mrs. Tracy, who had an insatiable interest in diplomatic society. When she had satisfied the latter's curiosity she led the conversation by a straight path to the sufferings of the children of Austria and begged them to join her in forming a relief committee. They received this philanthropic suggestion with no apparent fervor, but it served to relieve the stiffness and tension until they retired to the drawing-room for coffee.

They stood about for a few moments, Mary looking up at the portrait of Jane Oglethorpe in her flaming youth. But the hostess ordered them all to sit down and exclaimed peremptorily: "Now, Mary, tell them all about it or I'll have a lot of fainting, hysterical women on my hands. We're still human if we are old and ugly. Go to it, as Janet would say. I believe you have met that estimable exponent of the later New York manner. You are no more extraordinary yourself than some of the changes here at home, but you're more picturesque, and that's harder to swallow. Put them out of their misery."

The ladies smiled or frowned, according to what humor the Almighty, niggardly in his bestowal of humor, had allotted them. At all events they were used to "Jane." Mrs. Goodrich, who had led Mary to a sofa and seated herself beside her, took her hand and pressed it affectionately, as if she were encouraging her on the way to the operating room. "Yes, tell us the story, darling. It is all too wonderful!"

"Do you really mean that you have never heard of this treatment?" asked Madame Zattiany, who knew quite well that they had not. "Few things are better known in Europe."

"We have never heard of it," said Mrs. Vane austerely. "We were loyally unprepared.

GUARD HEALTH OF LIVESTOCK, ADVICE GIVEN

Dr. Schalk, Veterinarian at Ag College, Says Study Should Be Made

MUST WATCH CLOSELY

Fargo N. D., Feb. 12.—The old proverb which says that "The watchful eye of the shepherd fattens his flock," should be modified to read: "It helps to detect the first symptoms of disease," said Dr. A. F. Schalk, veterinarian at the North Dakota Agricultural college in a radio program recently broadcasted from the college station.

"Hundreds of North Dakota farmers are planning on going into livestock if the Coulter bill passes," the veterinarian said, "and it is important that they watch the health of the animals they purchase."

"All classes of livestock show by their bearing and general appearance that most desirable condition known as good health. When we see animals with a bright eye, glossy hair-coat, soft pliable skin, good appetite and in a state of contentment we recognize at once that they are healthy. On the other hand, if they show a dull, sunken eye, a dejected facial expression, a coarse, rough hair-coat, a hidebound skin and little or no inclination to eat or remain in the vicinity of the herd or flock, they are unwell and have some disease condition."

Herdsmen and caretakers declare, according to Dr. Schalk, that it is necessary for cattle and sheep to chew their cud, for pigs to have a sharp, well-developed curl in their tails, for cattle to have an abundance of moisture on the muzzle and warmth at the base of the horns, and for barnyard fowls to have plenty of color in their combs and wattles.

This is not superstition, Dr. Schalk assured, but basic principles of health that every prospective purchaser of livestock should learn.

"Perhaps no other phase of animal hygiene of health is of more vital importance than the selection of sound healthy breeding stock," he continued. "At this time when a large number of our heretofore small-grain farmers are planning a start in livestock in an endeavor to balance their agriculture, too much stress cannot be placed upon this very important problem.

"In many instances it will be a matter of selecting stock for foundation purposes and great care should be taken to obtain only healthy animals for the beginning.

"The question is equally important, however, in new additions to small herds and flocks in the process of building or those already established. If you make a practice of purchasing only sound and vigorous animals, free from disease, the task of keeping them in a healthy condition will not be so difficult.

"As we meet with unscrupulous breeders of livestock, as well as in other lines of business, it is good policy to buy from those who have well-established reputations for square dealings and clean healthy animals.

"While it is not always possible to select animals free from disease, many precautions can be taken to safeguard one's purchases. Among the more probable disease to be encountered in breeding cattle are those of tuberculosis, abortion diseases, sterility and udder troubles, any of which would render the animal practically worthless for breeding purposes.

"Fortunately the dangers from tuberculosis are being gradually lessened, as both state and federal regulations make it necessary that breeding cattle should be accompanied by health certificates showing their freedom from this disease before they can enter into interstate shipment or come into the state. However, one can easily bring in the disease in the purchase of grade cattle within the state that have not been tested. In the case of abortion disease, it is well to purchase only from herds that you know to be free from that disease. If that cannot be determined in advance, you have access to one of the blood tests.

"In selecting cattle great care should be exercised in the examination of the udder. This is particularly true of dairy cows, as their udders are their chief assets. Aside from such defects as hard milkers, lump or spide in the teats and atrophied or shrunken quarters which tend to lessen their efficiency in milk production, special caution should be taken not to pick out cows harboring an active case of garget or infection of the udder."

VIEWS OF WILSON'S FUNERAL

These photographs, taken during the funeral services of Ex-President Wilson, show scenes in connection with the simple, final honors paid the war-time executive.

UPPER—Wilson's casket being removed from the hearse at Bethlehem chapel for the funeral services preliminary to placing the body in the crypt of the edifice.

CENTER—The final earthly journey of Woodrow Wilson. Through streets crowded by thousands who paid homage, the funeral hearse was escorted to Bethlehem chapel by pall bearers selected from the enlisted ranks of the army, navy and marine corps. These same men served in a similar capacity at the Harding services.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

To the Editor of
Bismarck Tribune:

For some months past the question of whether or not this government should pass the so-called adjusted compensation—or bonus—bill has been continually before the public. The view-point of service men has been given little prominence, and I therefore ask that you publish this letter so that your readers may hear briefly what the proponents of the measure have to say.

First of all, I wish to call attention to the fact that the service men have been given to underst and at all times that such a measure would be passed, even the veto of President Harding being based primarily on the supposed condition of the treasury. Sec. Mellon had informed him that there would be approximately two-thirds of a billion deficit without any expense of an adjusted compensation bill. Mr. Mellon's figures were wrong, for the close of the period showed a surplus of nearly a third of a billion, or a total error in Mr. Mellon's estimate of about one billion dollars. The service men of this nation and their friends therefore have a right to assume that Mr. Mellon is not infallible and that his present statements are by no means the words of an inspired oracle.

The service men have been given to understand by the leaders of all factions at all times that an adjusted compensation bill would be passed. They believe that the services which they rendered will be by no means overpaid should the bill be paid. The argument that such payment is "putting a price on patriotism" is all bunk. The five or six dollars a month we had left after paying government insurance premiums, compulsory allotments, etc. was "putting a price on patriotism" too if either is the case. All countries after all wars have universally made additional settlement after the emergency subsided, not only to those who were disabled but to all who served at a nominal pay. The other allied nations in the world war, though more heavily encumbered with war debt than we, have already provided compensation. The United States, the richest of them all, stands before the world as "too poor" to pay a just debt to the country's defenders, according to those who are sponsoring the so-called Mellon plan.

All of us are in favor of tax reduction as far as possible. Likewise, most honest men are in favor of paying just debts. It is absolutely certain that a substantial tax reduction can be had without sand-bagging the interests of the men who fought. The daily newspapers tell us that the service men will have to help pay their own bonus in years to come. Yes, and they will have to help pay the billions loaned to foreign countries and paid to domestic grafters.

We are told that the service man himself doesn't want compensation. That statement has no foundation in fact. The real truth of the situation is that, after being repeatedly promised this compensation, the average service man is suddenly made dizzy by the terrific onslaught launched by Secretary Mellon, acquiesed in by President Coolidge and passed on by the major portion of the daily newspapers of the nation. The service man doesn't know who still feels he should be partially repaid for his time and effort, and who has forgotten the conditions existing during the war and now prefers to hope to save a dollar by opposing any compensation for the service man. The service man reacted to this unexpected situation by "crawling into his shell" and talking to none except his buddies at his post meetings.

This week advertisements are being published throughout this state for the purpose of letting the public know the service man's arguments. They are not intended to influence congressmen and senators from North Dakota because each ad every one are still for compensation. One of the congressmen wrote me only this week that North Dakota should remember that eight times as much funds will be paid to North Dakota service men as North Dakota income taxpayers will pay. Get the significance of that. It is the industrial east that will pay the lion's share of the account. And it was that industrial east that made the lion's share of the profit during the war. This congressman, and he is not classed as a radical by anyone, further states, "I have always taken the view that adjusted compensation and tax reduction are entirely independent questions."

The public is given to understand that if these soldier fellows get the bonus they will spend it shooting craps and getting drunk. As a matter of fact, the bill provides that no service man who would be entitled to more than $50 can secure the same in cash. He must take certificates equal to 20-year endowment insurance, and settlement or vocational aid. Practically every married service man, and a large per cent of them are now in that class, will take the 20-year certificate option, if given a choice.

Cong. Burtness himself has published a statement that $80,000,000 will finance adjusted compensation each year for the present at least. Mr. Mellon proposes a tax reduction of four times that amount. Can't the people of this nation feel satisfied with a three-fourths reduction of Mr. Mellon's estimate and allow the other one-fourth to be used to liquidate a just claim.

The adjusted compensation issue will be an ever recurring one each year until settlement is made. Its defeat this year makes it an issue next year, and in every succeeding year. The sooner the issue is squarely met and honestly considered, the sooner one cause of unrest in this nation will be eliminated. I rarely find an opponent of compensation who can tell me even in a general way the provisions of the bill that was vetoed. As department commander of the American Legion, the largest service man's organization, I ask that our people learn for themselves what the bill will give the men, and then do the popular thing: write his personal views to his congressman and senators. Our representatives in Congress want it. They are thoroughly familiar with the sordid nature of the fight that has been made against adjusted compensation, and they want individual expressions, not the prepared expressions of employees under an implied threat of dismissal if they don't sign on the dotted line.

Yours very truly,
Frank B. Streeter
Department Commander
American Legion
Department of North Dakota.

Editor of Bismarck Tribune:
Dear Sir:

Some time last winter the Tribune published an article headed "Scouts labor lost; logs for cabin stolen." The sub head was, "New candidate for meanest man class discovered by Bismarck boys. This article concerned some stolen logs which belonged to Troop 2, Boy Scouts.

Last Saturday a troop of Scouts from the same troop went to the cabin on Apple creek intent upon finishing the roof of the cabin. Upon investigation they found our "New candidate for the meanest man class" had taken a block and tackle, not the property of the scouts, a bundle of shingles and some cans of tar also a large quantity of nails. We lost some very valuable property in this "haul." We feel this man is about as mean a man as could be. I should like to see an article to this effect printed in the Tribune and if the man who removed these articles should see it he would know how we felt towards him. If further information to effect is needed ask any Scout of Troop 2 and he will gladly volunteer all he knows.

Yours very respectfully,
M. G. F. a Scout of Troops.

P. S.—We regret the trouble to which we have put you.?

POET'S CORNER

OUR POET

Dedicated to "Jim" Foley.

You came to the West when the prairies,
Were vacant, wide-open and free,
Not a trace of the towns and the cities,
Or the homes, that were one today to be;
But you wrote of that life as you found it,
Of the cowboys, and trails now grown dim,
You pictured in rhyme the glad scenes of that time,
And we love you for doing it, Jim.

The prairies gave place to the wheat fields,
They stretch away mile upon mile,
And the old-fashioned ways of our childhood,
Have yielded to fashion and style;
No more the wild chant of the cowboy,
Resounds on the clear morning air,
Nor the coyotes long wail as he follows the trail,
That leads to his fast-hidden lair.

You wrote of the West as you found it,
Of the cowboy, grim smiling and staunch,
As he herded his charges before him,
On the wide, open space of the ranch;
Today some might call him a "terror,"
And call evil the life that he led,
He was ready to scrap at the drop of a hat,
And 'twas seldom he slept in a bed.

The West, as it once was, has gone, Jim,
It has left nevermore to return,
The brave lads of that day have all passed away,
But still for their presence we yearn;
There's a wee bit o' wild in us all, Jim,
And a love for Adventure's keen zest,
That is just why we say that we love you today.

This day you are fifty years old, Jim,
You have garnered the richest of sheaves,
And have bound them together with heart-throbs,—
True scenes which your magic pen weaves;
The songs you have sung shall live on, Jim,
As long as Man loves the old West,
But the friends you have known in the day now agone,
Must love them and understand best.

—Florence Borner.

FINLAND ASKS N. D. OATS SEED

In Market for 1,000 Tons of High Grade Seed Oats

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 12.—Finland is in the market for 1000 tons of high grade seed oats from North Dakota fields, according to officials at the North Dakota Agricultural college. Through an international seed firm Finland has asked the college to advise where in the state this shipment of seed oats can be secured.

"The letter is a bonafide order for 1000 tons or 60,000 bushels of seed oats," declares Gordon Randlett, extension director at the college. "A premium will be paid on oats that are of high quality and that will satisfy the demands made by Finland for well-bred oats that have a good germination test and are free from weed seed. Undoubtedly $1.00 or more a bushel would be paid for such oats.

College officials report that there is very little seed oats in the state that will live up to the specifications asked for by Finland and other countries that are looking for high quality seed. Dealers as well as farmers that have such seed are being sought in effort to fill the order, Mr. Randlett reports.

"The marketing department of the college often receives requests for high quality seed," says Dr. A. H. Benton, marketing specialist. "Many orders have been received this fall by various college officials requesting the names of farmers who could furnish quality seed in potatoes, flax, oats and other farm products. A premium will always be paid for well bred seed that is free from disease and that possesses a high measure of vitality."

IT NEVER FAILED HIM

Veteran railroad engineer, with 56 years of unbroken service to his credit, declares Tanlac proved equal to emergency and restored his strength and energy when he was badly rundown in health.

J. F. McWaters, veteran railroad man, of 447 East Fair St., Atlanta, Ga., who is credited with 56 years' unbroken service as an engineer on the Atlanta & West Point, recently paid high tribute to Tanlac.

"Several years ago," said Mr. McWaters, "I became so run-down it looked like my chain of service might be broken before I could run out my fifty-year period. However, I resorted to Tanlac to set me right, and Tanlac proved fully equal to the trouble and bringing my strength and energy right up to normal.

"Since then, when I have felt a little run-down, or 'off my feed,' as the railroad boys say, I have taken Tanlac, and it never fails to do the work. I am using Tanlac now as a general tonic, and my health stays fine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Miners To Arctic Circle By Air

Anchorage, Alaska, Feb. 12.—Prospectors, miners and trappers will be taken into the Arctic Circle by dirigible next summer, if a company, whose representatives now are in interior Alaska, carries out announced plans.

Those organizing the project say they believe the dirigible will prove a solution for the placer operator, who finds the long slow routes of waterways and dog trails a serious problem in time and financing. The "farthest north" trappers are confronted with the same difficulty.

The first airship will ply, according to the announcement, between Fairbanks, the Chandelar and Koyokuk. It is planned eventually to extend the service to other districts.

If dirigible transportation is thus installed, the traveler may reach the Arctic Circle within eight days after sailing from Seattle. He would travel by boat six days, landing in Anchorage, then by train 24 hours to Fairbanks, whence he would be whisked through the air for the last and hardest lap of the journey.

With the passing of many of the famous old placer camps south of the Yukon, the prospector has pressed over northward, into the shadow of the Polar wilderness. However, the promising fields within the Arctic Circle often require hydraulic operations, and, even where a "pay discovery" has been made, it is a matter of weeks, sometimes months, to get a force of miners and the equipment over the snow and ice trails into the remote sections.

The company's representatives declare they can carry two tons of men and equipment into the Arctic in a few hours, at a cost of about one-fourth that entailed by dog-sled transportation.

The dirigible also may be used to take summer tourists for visits to "the Arctic silences."

The announcement of the contemplated dirigible service has stirred in Alaskan towns a clamor for mail to be delivered by air to such points as Nome, the Upper Kuskokwim and the Kobuk country. At present this mail is carried by dogs and requires from two weeks to a month after it leaves the Alaska Railroad. The parcel post business has grown to such dimensions that it is costing the government a heavy sum to supply points that are cut off from modern transportation. Steamers reach Nome in summer, but the Bering Sea town is ice-locked and dependent on communication by overland trail most of the year.

Velez, Fugitive, Has Longer Leave

Havanna, Feb. 12.—The case of Carlos Gracia Velez, veteran of Cuba's war of independence and of several of her subsequent revolutions, presents an anomaly unparalleled in Cuban politics. Although he was indicted last fall for seeking to overthrow the government and legally is a fugitive from justice, President Zayas recently signed a decree extending his leave of absence from his post as minister to London, and Velez remains in hiding still talking revolution.

Velez came home last spring on his first leave in 2 years of service as minister to Mexico and Great Britain and went to South America to represent Cuba as a Pan-American conference. On returning to Havana he became dissatisfied and helped organize the Veterans' and Patriots' Association. Having been elected its president, he drew up demands for government reforms similar to those made by American Ambassador Crowder in his famous "moralization program," and announced that the reforms would be forced on the Zayas government by revolution if necessary.

President Zayas formally announced that he was sympathetic toward reforms shown to be necessary, but that congress was the one to act. Activities of the veterans and patriots stirred the government to extraordinary precautions for a time last fall and finally resulted in indictments being returned against Velez and a dozen other leaders. All put up bonds except Velez, who went into hiding and issued a proclamation calling on his followers to be 'ready for what might come.'

Meantime the revolutionary talk is not so pronounced. The secret police appear to have ceased looking for Velez and the indictments have not been pressed. One government official in a position to know said he believed President Zayas granted the request for an extension of leave as a clever way of indicating that he did not take Velez's activities seriously. Velez declared he demanded the extension because legally he was entitled to it.

If Velez does decide to go back to London when his leave is up March 8 he will have to pass within a stone's throw of secret police headquarters to get to the state department for his final instructions.

Now that a Danish prince has married the heiress of a lumber king, we may expect to have some decent safety matches at last.—Life.

Circus Animals Have Sea Sickness

Hamburg, Feb. 12.—"Old Rose," an elephant 90 years of age, suffered most from sea sickness of all the 300 trained animals which sailed from Hamburg for Montevideo as part of a circus which is now on a tour of South American countries. The animals and circus performers occupied all of the steamship Ludendorff, which was chartered for the voyage.

There were nine other elephants beside "Old Rose," who is queen of the herd, and all bore up very well indeed until the leader herself became ill and kept the veterinarians and trainers up every night for a good part of the three weeks' ocean trip. The elephants at first were kept up on deck, but sight of the waves and the constant rolling and pitching of the vessel agitated them and resulted in so much bellowing that they were soon moved below deck.

Rough weather bothered the lions, too, and the trainer, Frankie Tillie Lehrmann, of Vienna, was with her pets day and night trying to console them whenever the sea tossed the ship about. The bears and tigers roared, sometimes with the ups and downs of every wave; the monkeys squealed and squeaked, and the hyenas howled and laughed until some members of the ship's crew began to think that perhaps after all they would never reach the other side, and that the elements were set on putting an end to their existence.

Writing home of their experiences, the animal trainers say the voyage was a nightmare which lasted several weeks. The snakes were the only quiet things aboard the ship during the stormy weather, they said.

Life Has Many Interruptions

Bloomsburg, Pa., Feb. 12 Bloomsburg residents of houses adjoining churches declare life is just one interruption after another.

June and December are the two months with the most interruptions, and these are due to the number of young persons seeking ministers to perform marriage ceremonies. The supposition is general that parsonages are located adjacent to churches, but in Bloomsburg there are only three of 15 churches where this is true, and the other pastors live a block or two from their churches. The result is the families residing next to the churches are visited by couples galore.

G. Edward Elwell, whose residence adjoins the Methodist church here, received 60 calls from couples during 1923, all seeking a minister to perform a marriage ceremony In each case they were informed that the parsonage is two blocks away.

DISPUTE OVER CHILD'S NAME

Ludwigsburg, Wurttemberg, Feb. 12 This little town, which, in its palmy days, was the seat of the old kingdom of Wurttemberg, has been split in two by a dispute among the residents and officials over the question of a baby's name. So far as Ludwigsburg officially is concerned there is a little girl baby here who has no first name at all because her parents insisted upon registering her as Margot. This name the town registrar refused point blank to accept on the ground that it was of French origin and unacceptable to him on that account.

The mother and father have refused to change the baby's name merely to suit a whim of the registrar, and all their friends have rallied to support them in what has been referred to as Ludwigsburg's warmest town row in several generations. The parents contend that residents of the free town of Ludwigsburg may name babies as they see fit, and that such a personal matter is none of the business of the city fathers or any of their clerks who, "apparently don't know the war is over."

On the other hand, the registrar has been upheld in his stand by the burgomaster and the majority of the town deputies and their political followers.

Pepper Comes Down in Price

Paris, Feb. 12. One of the necessities of life, after dint of hard digging by the statisticians, has been found to cost less in 1924 than in 1914. Pepper is the odd commodity. The price now is seven francs as against 11 francs before the war.

Steam railroads in the United States carried nearly two billion passengers last year, figures the Bureau of Railway Economics.

Life Has Many Interruptions

Bloomsburg, Pa., Feb. 12.—Bloomsburg residents of houses adjoining churches declare life is just one interruption after another.

June and December are the two months with the most interruptions, and these are due to the number of young persons seeking ministers to perform marriage ceremonies. The supposition is general that parsonages are located adjacent to churches, but in Bloomsburg there are only three of 15 churches where this is true, and the other pastors live a block or two from their churches. The result is the families residing next to the churches are visited by couples galore.

G. Edward Elwell, whose residence adjoins the Methodist church here, received 60 calls from couples during 1923, all seeking a minister to perform a marriage ceremony. In each case they were informed that the parsonage is two blocks away.

DISPUTE OVER CHILD'S NAME

Ludwigsburg, Wurttemberg, Feb. 12.—This little town, which, in its palmy days, was the seat of the old kingdom of Wurttemberg, has been split in two by a dispute among the residents and officials over the question of a baby's name. So far as Ludwigsburg officially is concerned there is a little girl baby here who has no first name at all because her parents insisted upon registering her as Margot. This name the town registrar refused point blank to accept on the ground that it was of French origin and inacceptable to him on that account.

The mother and father have refused to change the baby's name merely to suit a whim of the registrar, and all their friends have rallied to support them in what has been referred to as Ludwigsburg's warmest town row in several generations. The parents contend that residents of the free town of Ludwigsburg may name babies as they see fit, and that such a personal matter is none of the business of the city fathers or any of their clerks who "apparently don't know the war is over."

On the other hand, the registrar has been upheld in his stand by the burgomaster and the majority of the town deputies and their political followers.

Pepper Comes Down in Price

Paris, Feb. 12.—One of the necessities of life, after dint of hard digging by the statisticians, has been found to cost less in 1924 than in 1914. Pepper is the odd commodity. The price now is seven francs as against 14 francs before the war.

Steam railroads in the United States carried nearly two billion passengers last year, figures the Bureau of Railway Economics.

GUARD HEALTH OF LIVESTOCK, ADVICE GIVEN

Dr. Schalk, Veterinarian at Ag College, Says Study Should Be Made

MUST WATCH CLOSELY

Fargo N D, Feb. 12 The old proverb which says that "The watchful eye of the shepherd fattens his flock,' should be modified to read, "It helps to detect the first symptoms of disease," said Dr A F Schalk, veterinarian at the North Dakota Agricultural college in a radio program recently broadcasted from the college station.

"Hundreds of North Dakota farmers are planning on going into livestock if the Coulter Bill passes," the veterinarian said, "and it is important that they watch the health of the animals they purchase."

All animals in health show by their bearing and general appearance that most desirable condition known as good health When we see animals with a bright eye, glossy hair-coat, soft pliable skin, good appetite and in a state of contentment we recognize at once that they are healthy On the other hand, if they show a dull, sunken eye, a dejected facial expression, a coarse, rough hair-coat, a hidebound skin and little or no inclination to eat or remain in the vicinity of the herd or flock, they are unwell and have some disease condition"

Herdsmen and caretakers declare, according to Dr Schalk, that it is necessary for cattle and sheep to chew their cud, for pigs to have a sharp, well-developed curl in their tails, for cattle to have an abundance of moisture on the muzzle and warmth at the base of the horns, and for barnyard fowls to have plenty of color in their combs and wattles.

This is not superstition, Dr Schalk assured, but basic principles of health that every prospective purchaser of livestock should learn

"Perhaps no other phase of animal hygiene of health is of more vital importance than the selection of sound healthy breeding stock," he continued. "At this time when a large number of our heretofore small-grain farmers are planning a start in livestock in an endeavor to balance their agriculture, too much stress cannot be placed upon this very important problem.

"In many instances it will be a matter of selecting stock for foundation purposes and great care should be taken to obtain only healthy animals for the beginning.

"The question is equally important, however, in new additions to small herds and flocks in the process of building or those already established. If you make a practice of purchasing only sound and vigorous animals, free from disease, the task of keeping them in a healthy condition will not be so difficult.

"As we meet with unscrupulous breeders of livestock, as well as in other lines of business, it is good policy to buy from those who have well-established reputations for square dealings and clean healthy animals.

"While it is not always possible to select animals free from disease, many precautions can be taken to safeguard one's purchases Among the more probable disease to be encountered in breeding cattle are those of tuberculosis, abortion diseases, sterility and udder troubles, any of which would render the animal practically worthless for breeding purposes

"Fortunately the dangers from tuberculosis are being gradually lessened; as both state and federal regulations make it necessary that breeding cattle should be accompanied by health certificates showing their freedom from this disease before they can enter into interstate shipment or come into the state. However, one can easily bring in the disease in the purchase of grade cattle within the state that have not been tested. In the case of abortion disease, it is well to purchase only from herds that you know to be free from that disease If that cannot be determined in advance, you have access to one of the blood tests

"In selecting cattle great care should be exercised in the examination of the udder. This is particularly true of dairy cows, as their udders are their chief assets. Aside from such defects as hard milkers, lump or spide in the teats and atrophied or shrunken quarters which tend to lessen their efficiency in milk production, special caution should be taken not to pick out cows harboring an active case of garget or infection of the udder"

PEOPLE'S FORUM

Bismarck Tribune:

For some months past the question of whether or not the government should pass the so called adjusted compensation—or bonus bill has been continually before the public. The view-point of service men has been given little prominence, and I therefore ask that you publish this letter so that your readers may hear briefly what the proponents of the measure have to say.

First of all, I wish to call attention to the fact that the service men have been given to understand all along that such a measure would be passed, even the veto of President Harding being based primarily on the supposed condition of the treasury Mr Mellon had informed him that there would be approximately two-thirds of a billion deficit without any expense of an adjusted compensation bill. Mr Mellons figures were wrong for the close of the year showed a surplus of nearly a billion, or a total error in Mr Mellon's estimate of about one billion dollars. The service men of this nation and their friends therefore have a right to assume that Mr Mellon is not infallible and that his present statements are by no means the words of an inspired oracle.

The service men have come to understand by the leaders of the fact one that the proposed compensation bill would be passed They believe that the services which they rendered will be by no means overpaid should the bill be paid. The argument that such payment is "putting a price on patriotism" is all bunk. The five or six dollars a month we had left after paying government insurance premiums, compulsory allotments, etc was "putting a price on patriotism" too if either is the case. All countries after all wars have universally made additional settlement after the emergency subsided, not only to those who were disabled but to all who served at a nominal pay. The other allied nations in the world war, though more heavily encumbered with war debt than we, have already provided compensation. The United States, the richest of them all, stands before the world as "too poor" to pay a just debt to the country's defenders, according to those who are sponsoring the so-called Mellon plan.

All of us are in favor of tax reduction as far as possible. Likewise, most honest men are in favor of paying just debts. It is absolutely certain that a substantial tax reduction can be had without sand-bagging the interests of the men who fought. The daily newspapers tell us that the service men will have to help pay their own bonus in years to come on a choice.

Cong Burtness himself has published a statement that $80,000,000 will finance adjusted compensation each year for the present at least Mr Mellon proposes a tax reduction of four times that amount. Can't the people of this nation feel satisfied with a three-fourths reduction of Mr Mellon's estimate and allow the other one-fourth to be used to liquidate a just claim.

The adjusted compensation issue will be an ever recurring one each year until settlement is made. Its defeat this year makes it an issue next year, and in every succeeding year. The sooner the issue is squarely met and honestly considered, the sooner one cause of unrest in the nation will be eliminated. I rarely find an opponent of compensation who can tell me even in a general way the provisions of the bill that was vetoed. As department commander of the American Legion, the largest service man's organization, I ask that our people learn for themselves what the bill will give the men, and then do the popular thing: write his personal views to his congressman and senators. Our representatives in Congress want it. They are thoroughly familiar with the sordid nature of the fight that has been made against adjusted compensation, and they want individual expressions, not the prepared expressions of employees under an implied threat of dismissal, if they don't sign on the dotted line.

Yours very truly,
Frank B. Streeter
Department Commander

Editor of Bismarck Tribune:
Dear Sir:

Some time last winter the Tribune published an article headed "Scouts labor loot: logs for cabin stolen." The sub head was, "Now candidate for meanest man class discovered by Bismarck boys This article concerned to Troop 2, Boy Scouts.

Last Saturday a troop of Scouts from the same troop went to the cabin on Apple creek intent upon finishing the roof of the cabin. Upon investigation they found our "Now candidate for the meanest man class" had taken a block and tackle, not the property of the scouts, a bundle of shingles and some cans of tar also a large quantity of nails. We lost some very valuable property in this "haul." We feel this man is about as mean a man as could be. I should like to see an article to this effect printed in the Tribune and if the man who removed these articles should see it he would know how we felt towards him. If further information to effect is needed ask any Scout of Troop 2 and he will gladly volunteer all he knows.

Yours very respectfully,
M. G. F. a Scout of Troop.

P. S.—We regret the trouble to which we have put you.!

POET'S CORNER

OUR POET

Dedicated to "Jim" Foley.

You came to the West when the prairies,
Were vacant, wide-open and free,
Not a trace of the towns and the cities,
Or the homes, that were one today to be;
But you wrote of that life as you found it,
Of the cowboys, and trails now grown dim,
You pictured in rhyme the glad scenes of that time,
And we love you for doing it, Jim.

The prairies gave place to the wheat fields,
They stretch away mile upon mile,
And the old-fashioned ways of our childhood,
Have yielded to fashion and style;
No more the wild chant of the cowboy,
Resounds on the clear morning air,
Nor the coyotes long wail as he follows the trail,
That leads to his fast-hidden lair.

You wrote of the West as you found it,
Of the cowboy, grim smiling and staunch,
As he herded his charges before him,
On the wide, open space of the ranch;
Today some might call him a "terror,"
And call evil the life that he led,
He was ready to scrap at the drop of a hat,
And 'twas seldom he slept in a bed.

The West, as it once was, has gone, Jim,
It has left nevermore to return,
The brave lads of that day have all passed away,
But still for their presence we yearn;
There's a wee bit o' wild in us all, Jim,
And a love for Adventure's keen zest,
That is just why we say that we love you today.

This day you are fifty years old, Jim,
You have garnered the richest of sheaves,
And have bound them together with heart-throbs,—
True scenes which your magic pen weaves;
The songs you have sung shall live on, Jim,
As long as Man loves the old West,
But the friends you have known in the day now agone,
Must love them and understand best.

—Florence Borner.

FINLAND ASKS N. D. OATS SEED

In Market for 1,000 Tons of High Grade Seed Oats

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 12—Finland is in the market for 1000 tons of high grade seed oats from North Dakota fields, according to officials at the North Dakota Agricultural college. Through an international seed firm Finland has asked the college to advise where a carload shipment of seed oats can be secured.

"The letter is a bonafide order for 1000 tons or 60,000 bushels of seed oats," declares Gordon Randlett, extension director at the college. "A premium will be paid on oats that are of high quality and that will satisfy the demands made by Finland for well-bred oats that have a good germination test and are free from weed seed. Undoubtedly $1.00 or more a bushel would be paid for such oats.

College officials report that there is very little seed oats in the state that will live up to the specifications asked for by Finland and other countries that are looking for high quality seed. Dealers as well as farmers that have such seed are being sought in effort to fill the order, Mr. Randlett reports.

"The marketing department of the college often receives requests for high quality seed," says Dr. A. H. Benton, marketing specialist. "Many orders have been received this fall by various college officials requesting the names of farmers who could furnish quality seed in potatoes, flax, oats and other farm products. A premium will always be paid for well bred seed that is free from disease and that possesses a high measure of vitality."

BOY KILLED.

Mott, N. D., Feb. 12.—When the cinch of his saddle loosened letting the saddle turn upon the horse's black, Harold, aged 8, son of Christ Brenckel, farmer near here, was dragged to death, when his foot caught in the stirrup and the horse ran away.

Guns are used to harpoon whales now, and there is little danger to whalers.

IT NEVER FAILED HIM

Veteran railroad engineer, with 56 years of unbroken service to his credit, declares Tanlac proved equal to emergency and restored his strength and energy when he was badly rundown in health.

J. F. McWaters, veteran railroad man, of 447 East Fair St., Atlanta, Ga., who is credited with 56 years' unbroken service as an engineer on the Atlanta & West Point, recently paid high tribute to Tanlac.

"Several years ago," said Mr. McWaters, "I became so run-down it looked like my chain of service might be broken before I could run out my fifty-year period. However, I resorted to Tanlac to set me right, and Tanlac proved fully equal to the trouble and bringing my strength and energy right up to normal.

"Since then, when I have felt a little run-down, or 'off my feed,' as the railroad boys say, I have taken Tanlac, and it never fails to do the work. I am using Tanlac now as a general tonic, and my health stays fine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

AUTO COMPANY HEADS SEE BIG YEAR IN 1924

W. E. Lahr, Returning From Chicago, Says Willys-Overland Head Is Optimistic

SOME CHANGES MADE

Leading automobile manufacturers of the nation expect the year 1924 to be one of the biggest automobile years in history.

W. E. Lahr, president of the Lahr Motor Sales Company, returning from the Chicago and Minneapolis auto shows, found automobile men highly optimistic over the future.

John N. Willys, head of the Willys-Overland Company, who addressed 800 dealers at a banquet in the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel, predicted that 1924 will be far the best year in the history of Willys-Overland Company, Mr. Lahr said.

"The company built over 200,000 cars in 1923 and the mark for 1924 is set at 300,000 cars," Mr. Lahr said. "Mr. Willys explained that the Willys-Overland Company did not owe a dollar to the banks and had made over $13,000,000 in 1923. Mr. Willys also said that 1924 will be a year of keen competition and elimination, and it will be a survival of the fittest."

L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the entire Willys-Overland organization, also was a speaker at this banquet. Mr. Lahr secured his promise to come to Bismarck the first week in April to attend a dealers' conference of the Lahr Motor Sales Company. This conference of dealers in western North Dakota and eastern Montana Mr. Lahr plans to make the largest ever held.

There were 375 Willys-Overland dealers and distributors at a banquet held in Minneapolis during the show there, which followed the Chicago show. Those present included about 12 dealers of the Lahr Motor Sales Company. Mr. Peed addressed this banquet.

Speaking of the changes shown in automobile construction at the Chicago show, Mr. Lahr said that outside of balloon tires the principal changes on the standard cars—the biggest sellers—was in modification of body designs and special color jobs. The body changes, he said, were not marked, all adhering to the stream-line design.

Several models were shown with balloon tires. Mr. Lahr expressed belief that balloon tires will come into vogue after a time. The Willys-Overland Company, he said, was proceeding conservatively, and is offering new models with balloon tires as extra equipment if the customers desire the innovation.

President Cleveland on February 22, 1889, signed the Enabling Act which provided for "the division of Dakota into two states and to enable the people of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Washington to form constitutions and state governments and to be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states."

Delegates from various parts of North Dakota were elected to a constitutional convention May 14, the same year, and on July 4 the seventy-five delegates met. August 17 the constitution was submitted to the people of the state for adoption and November 2 President Harrison issued the proclamation admitting North Dakota into the Union as a state.

All living members of the constitutional convention are to be invited to the statehood observance at the university. Only about half of the original seventy-five are living.

Members of the state bar association are to be invited for the law building dedication and it is hoped Dean Squires states, that many of the state officials will be present for both programs.

LESSONS FROM ABE LINCOLN'S LIFE ARE TOLD

Rev. S. F. Halfyard Pictures Lincoln as Great and Many-sided American

WAS A GREAT ORATOR

"Lessons From the Life of Abraham Lincoln" is the subject of a sermon delivered at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday night by Dr. S. F. Halfyard, in observance of the birthday anniversary of the Great Emancipator, which is today.

Mr. Halfyard said in part:

"The farther this man recedes into history the greater does he seem to be. In this respect he is like Abraham of Old Testament fame who becomes more and more illustrious as the centuries pass. The farther we get away from the rugged features of the early career of Lincoln the better we are able to see the beauty of his character. As the decades pass his life takes on larger and truer proportions. He becomes more sublime with the growing years.

"Lincoln has been called a many-sided man. Some one has said that physically he was able to wrestle with the best athletes of his day. He was able to talk like a preacher, spell and cipher like a schoolmaster, argue like a lawyer and write like an editor. He was an inimitable story-teller. He was a master of wit and sarcasm and humor. Some of his stories have greatly enriched our literature. He was a man of the world. His knowledge of things and of human life was very extensive. He was a man of strong personality and influenced others without conscious effort. He was a brilliant orator. He was a lawyer of more than average ability. He was a brilliant orator. He was a wise legislator and statesman, a true patriot. Lowell has called him the first American. In this respect of versatility our nation perhaps has never produced his equal.

A Gifted Orator.

"Mr. Lincoln was a gifted orator. Judge Simeon W. King of the city of Chicago tells us that he heard the famous debate between Lincoln and Douglas. He says that Lincoln astonished the audience by his fine speaking. Although his speech was simple in style yet he spoke with a great flow of oratory and eloquence. He carried the mighty throng with him in a manner never before witnessed in that city. One English newspaper said 'that it is not too much to say of Lincoln that he is among the greatest masters of prose ever produced by the English race.' Four of his productions rank with the greatest literary productions of the age and will live for long centuries. I refer to his farewell address to his neighbors and friends in Springfield, Ill., to his letter to Mrs. Bixby, to his Gettysburg address and to his second inaugural address. These are classics of the very first order. They are masterpieces in thought and expression. The London Spectator declared that the second inaugural address is the noblest political document known to history. Lincoln's thought and words were golden.

"Lincoln was also a man of honesty. In this respect his life and character were above reproach. Lincoln lived in a day when men resorted to fraud and dishonesty. One writer says that this epoch of our national history brought out the most desperate efforts of political wire-pullers. They resorted to base and low methods. But Lincoln stood solid as a rock upon the foundation of absolute honesty. He refused to do or give his assent to a thing that would not bear the light of day. He stood firm in the right as God gave him ot see the right.

Firm Against Deals.

"To a party who wished to be empowered to negotiate reward for promises of influence in the Chicago convention in 1860 Mr. Lincoln replied: 'No gentlemen, I have not asked the nomination and I will not now buy it with pledges. If I am nominated and elected I shall not go into the presidency as the tool of this man or that man, or as the property of any faction or clique.

"Lincoln was also a man of deep religious piety. He was a man who felt and acknowledged his dependence on God and who spent much time in prayer. He loved and read the Bible. He possessed a large measure of the spirit of Christ and embodied that spirit in good will and service to man.

"General Sickles, who had been wounded at the battle of Gettysburg was talking with Lincoln a few days after the battle. He asked Lincoln how the members of the administration at Washington felt while the fighting was going on in Pennsylvania Mr. Lincoln said that some of the men were greatly stampeded but that he himself was not much concerned. He said: 'In the stress and pinch of the campaign I went to my room and got down on my knees and prayed to God for victory at Gettysburg. I told him that this country was his country and this war was his war. And then I made a solemn vow with my Maker that if he would stand by our boys at Gettysburg I would stand by him for the rest of my life. And he did, and I will. After this, I don't know how it was, and it is not for me to explain, but somehow or other a sweet comfort crept into my soul that God Almighty had taken the whole thing into his own hands and we were going to win at Gettysburg! His faith and trust in God were strong.

"He knew to bide his time,
And can his fame abide.
Still patient, in his simple faith sublime,
Till the wise years decide
Great captains with the drums and guns,
Disturb our judgment for the hour,
But at last silence comes;
These are all gone, and standing like a tower.
Our children shall behold his fame,
The kindly, earnest, brave, far-seeing man.
Sagacious, patient, dreading praise, not blame.
New birth of our new soil,
The First American."

The War on Waste

WASTE is the result of misdirected energy. It is like dirt—matter out of place.

The history of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) success may be summed up in two words "Industrial Husbandry" which is another way of saying "Eliminating Waste."

In a big organization such as the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) there are innumerable opportunities to waste time, effort and material.

By intensified organization, by providing proper facilities, abundant raw materials, pleasant working conditions, and by encouraging initiative—the Company makes it possible for every man in its employ to develop the best there is in him and to conclusively prove his worth by his achievements.

Through intensive study and extensive research and experiments, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has found ways to recover more than a score of useful products from waste—products that fill a definite place in the commercial or domestic affairs of mankind.

Time was when gasoline was waste in the petroleum industry. Today, it is the major product.

Perhaps the outstanding example of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) achievements, in eliminating waste, is in the increased yield of gasoline per barrel of crude made possible by processes discovered and developed in its laboratories.

This achievement is the greater because of the imperative urge for more gasoline.

In 1918 there were 6,146,617 cars and trucks registered in the United States. In 1922 there were 12,239,114—or an increase of nearly 100%.

In 1918 the industry produced 326 million barrels of crude, as against 501 million barrels in 1922—an increase of only 53% plus.

Statistics show that while less than 10 gallons of gasoline were recovered per barrel of crude in 1918 that the industry increased the yield to more than 12 gallons per barrel in 1922.

This increased yield was due largely to the process as developed by this Company, and without such an increased yield the price of gasoline unquestionably would be higher.

Thus does the war on waste, waged so intensively by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), redound to the lasting benefit of mankind and also enable the Management of this Company to give a satisfactory accounting of its stewardship to the stockholders now numbering 45,286, more than 11,000 of whom are employes.
